5 DEAD ON ADRIATIC

S. S. Washington Stands By; Blast in Strike Coal

A mysterious explosion in the hold containing coal from England to help break America's strike caused the White Star liner Adriatic to sound the wireless S. O. S. 400 miles off the coast of Boston. The liner is now limping toward port with five dead, many injured and a panic-stricken list of passengers. The U. S. Steamship George Washington, summoned by wireless is standing by to render such assistance as it can in battling the stubborn fire at sea.

The dead are members of the engineer's department of the crew. Several men are missing. Several are dying.

A score of passengers, many of them prominent were injured in the panic which followed the early morning blast which sent a geyser of flame shooting skyward higher than the big ship's mastheads.

Coal bunkers in No. 3 hold exploded with a force that shook the big ship from stem to stern.

There were 2,200 souls aboard, 650 of them passengers. Fire followed the blast.

Flames crackled as passengers poured from staterooms onto the decks and made a mad scramble in night clothes for life boats. As a whole they were quite calm though members were falling about them.

Naval officials said the vessel might put in at Boston, but later assurances from the Adriatic's commander, Captain David, said help was not necessary and that the liner would make port.

The vessel was steaming from Liverpool to New York.

On board listed among the passengers of prominence are:

Martin H. Glynn, of Albany, former governor of New York, and Mrs. Glynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Tibbalis.

Frak Kaley and Albert Strauss of New York.

Clarence Howard, St. Louis.

First information that the Adriatic was in distress came when this message crackled through the air to the Atlantic Coast:

"Explosion No. 3 hold. Send assistance immediately."

The message was blurred, due to interference.

Immediately from the United States radio station at Bar Harbor went forth this crisp command to every merchant ship within 1,000 miles:

"Silence. Distress signal in the air. Keep off."

Immediately a hundred wireless outfits quieted and clear as a bell from the powerful sending set of the Adriatic's wireless came the call for help.

"Send assistance immediately."

It was signed by Captain David and gave the vessel's position as latitude 41.23 North, longitude 51.41 West, approximately 300 miles east of Portland, Me.

The message was picked up at Bar Harbor, the Charlestown Navy Yard and other points.

The U. S. vessel George Washington was the first to reply, "Rushing to assistance of Adriatic."

From a few minutes after the help wanted message had been received up to noon the government stations were in constant communication with the stricken vessel with the exception of one hour when the Bar Harbor station failed to pick her up.

Messages came in rapid succession

If "Big 4" Should Strike The 5-Cent Cigar, Welcome Gov. Edwards' Insurance Bargain Bonds

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright 1922, by Star Company.

If the "Big Four" decide to strike, every railroad would close down, with no "ifs or buts." The President has told you men can't be compelled to work.

Here and there "Big Four" organizations have quit. Mr. Stone, head of the engineers, objects to his men working under supervision of soldiers with loaded rifles, when the men are not even on strike. "We won't have our men shot up," says he.

Men owning railroads that have never done a day's real work in their lives find it difficult to understand this attitude. It can be made clear to them.

Suppose the owners, as they sit directing railroads in their Wall street offices, found themselves working under the supervision of union labor leaders with loaded "automatics" in their hands. Suppose here and there a shot were fired and an "owner" dropped dead in his nicely furnished office.

How would the owners like it? Wouldn't they say, "Call my limousine, I am going home until these armed men leave my desk."

The 5-cent cigar has returned after war time retirement. Ruskin said, "When a young man has a cigar in his mouth he thinks he is doing something."

Many men probably feel that they practice saintly economy when they buy 5-cent cigars.

The late George M. Pullman told this writer that when he determined to get money to build his first sleeping car, he first of all gave up "the extravagance of smoking 5-cent cigars."

Times change.

GANNA WALSKA BRIDE IN PARIS

Multi-Millionaire McCormick and Polish Opera Singer Are United

Paris, Aug. 11. (By International News Service).—A couple are registered at a hotel here as Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McCormick.

Which means that the long-expected, carefully planned, much denied marriage of the revitalized Chicago millionaire and Ganna Walska, the beautiful Polish peasant girl who became a diva, took place today.

Mr. McCormick recently secured a divorce from Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller.

A civil marriage ceremony was performed by the mayor of the sixteenth arrondissement. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Field Malone and Charles P. Bertilli, a newspaper writer.

Up to today, Madame Ganna Walska was wearing the mourning attire affected by divorcees in Paris. She recently was divorced from Alexander Smith Cochran, wealthy carpet manufacturer of Yonkers, N. Y. He was known as the richest bachelor in America.

Being now a proud benedict himself, it is expected that Mr. McCormick may extend parental blessings to his seventeen-year-old daughter, Mathilde McCormick, who has

TWO WAR VETERANS KILLED BY LIQUOR

Parker Hill Patients Drink Poisoned Booze, Third Victim Is Dying

Two World War veterans are dead and another is dying at the Parker Hill Hospital as the result of quaffing poisonous drink smuggled into the institution.

The dead men are:

Private James Hogan of Schenectady, N. Y.

Private Cornelius Crowley of Charlestown.

Private Thomas McKenney, of Charlestown, is dying at the hospital. For five days he has been unconscious. He is growing weaker every hour and is not expected to live through the day.

"The deaths have been caused by murderous moonshiners who sell their poison to our patients," says Dr. Percy L. Storey, executive officer of the hospital.

"It is nothing but a clear case of murder. These poisoners should be caught and hanged."

GOING ON FOR YEAR.

"This selling of poisonous moonshine to our boys has been going on for more than a year," stated Dr. Storey. "We have fought it as best we could.

"We have asked the prohibition officers to aid in the fight. We have called in the police. A few months ago the police and Federal officers did make a number of arrests in this vicinity. But they have not got at the stills producing the poison that has killed two of our patients and left in all probability kill a third.

The gang knows just when each man's pay check is due. It then lays for him and if he will drink they feed him their rotten moonshine and rob him."

VICTIMS KEEP SECRET.

The first veteran to die from the moonshine was James Horgan. He returned to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness and died.

Cornelius Crowley went back to the hospital after a day's absence in much the same condition. He, too, declared he was poisoned from moonshine. Then he died. None of the men would tell where they got the liquor.

BOSTON PEOPLE ON BOARD ADRIATIC

It is believed that Payson Dana, of Brookline, Commissioner of Civil Service, was among the passengers on the White Star liner, Adriatic, which reported an explosion at sea today.

Former Senator John A. Curtin and his son Curtis, and Mr. and Mrs. Norman W. Cabot, also of Brookline, are thought to have been on board the ship.

Relatives of other New Englanders who sailed on the Adriatic flooded the New York and Boston offices of the White Star line with telegrams and telephone calls making inquiries concerning the safety of the boat and the list of casualties.

SINISTER LOVE CULT SECRETS REVEALED

High-Sounding Phrases Hid Scheme to Undermine Morals of Girls

The Boston American today exposes the most flagrant "love cult" ever attempted in this country.

It was conducted in Boston for the purpose of undermining morals of young girls. The cult was cloaked with high-sounding phrases which made it appear to be a theosophical experiment.

Its founder and leader, Professor Arthur Griswold Long, is under arrest on complaints of the parents of three minor girls.

Today, while Long languishes in the psychopathic hospital, awaiting an examination ordered by court, the Boston American offers complete revelations of the "love cult" for girl novitiates ranging in ages from 14 to 21, a cult which has been in the course of development for twelve years.

Here are the highlights in the amorous fraternity founded and sponsored by the soft-voiced, cultured Professor Long, otherwise known as Edward Grosvenor, and sometimes as Mr. Soames of England:

The initiation fee was $5 and dues $1 a month.

The initiation consisted of a banquet in which all the diners were attired as Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

The fraternity is described as "a new organization for ladies, especially young ladies just leaving school, to study vital problems in connection with love, marriage, etc."

The professor was the only male permitted to be present during the initiatory banquet.

At other meetings of the fraternity, however, men are permitted to attend, providing they are wealthy or "independent professional man."

On such occasions it is emphasized in the professor's draft of rules, written in his own hand and in the possession of this newspaper, "nothing shall transpire to make the gathering anything more than an ordinary social club meeting for mutual enjoyment."

Above all, Professor Long enjoins upon the members of the fraternity "the strictest secrecy, particularly as to the secret rites."

CLOAK OF RELIGION.

The American also has in its possession a list of names of women who are either members of the fraternity or marked for membership and initiation.

Long disguised his activities under a cloak of religion, theosophy and new thought philosophy.

In between the love cult he offered his services as a music teacher, an organizer of picnics, sex instruction for children and numerous other side lines.

He lectured also on many subjects, including birth control.

Exposure of the activities of Professor Long came about in this manner:

A suspicious landlady peeked through a keyhole. She glued her ear to the door.

What she heard made her blush. What she saw made her knock on the door, and, when it was opened, ordered her lodged, Professor Long to seek lodging elsewhere.

The long-haired, mild-eyed professor, "friend of lofted children," possessor of many aliases and founder of one of the most astounding "love cults" on record, prepared with alacrity to leave.

Indignant mothers came to the premises at Bernard street, in Dorchester, and took away the little girls who had been in the room. The police interfered with the professor's plan to depart.

In June of this year printed invitations were sent out announcing the fact that "Professor Long has much pleasure in announcing that the club is about to resume its activities," and announcing a dinner at a Beacon street hotel.

A number of letters from followers of the "love cult" were found in Dr. Griswold's rooms in Dorchester. Some of them, from women, asked further explanations of the printed material he had sent them through the mails. One, however, signed by "Effie W. Persons, of No. 18 Havilond Spiritualism," "Woman Under the Law" and other writings on Mysticism. He finds this avatar of the spiritual message of the new conditions and its higher fulfillment in the monarchical doctrine of love and service, the great message of Jesus Christ to the world."

The announcement states that "invitations have been extended to the foremost of the State—Mayor James M. Curley and other prominent gentlemen."

LECTURED ON BIRTH CONTROL.

Flaring announcing various lectures given by Dr. Long—one on the subject of "The Bible, Sex and Birth Control," and another on "Love and Marriage Under Spiritual Conditions" were also found in his rooms. One was given in Dorchester at Lincoln Hall, wherein mother was given before the "Metaphysical Club" at No. 31 Huntington avenue.

In the magazine, "Naturopath," the description of the Fraternity was much the same, the "Professor" brought under control the long-hand notes found in his room. The notes announce that the purpose of "is a secret fraternity, secret because it has for its basis the study of the secret doctrine of the mystery of Jesus Christ, not understood by the world." Then it continues with the words already quoted.

The passage in the magazine reads, in full:

THE GROSVENOR FRATERNITY.

"This is a new organization for young ladies, especially those just leaving school. Its purpose is the study of philosophy, psychology, and vital problems in connection with love, marriage, etc. The idea is to study these problems in connection with the actual occurrences, tragic or otherwise, that take place in everyday life, and endeavor to bring into accord the high spiritual life with the real practical affairs of the world. The president is the author of Christian Spiritualism, a key to the Scriptures—Freedom and Happiness—Those in doubt and desiring to KNOW THE TRUTH are invited to read the above work and join the NEW LIFE FRATERNITY, the 144,000—Rev. E. Grosvenor."

On the bottom of the face of the card was the following inscription, heavily crossed out by ink" Secretary, 8 cisty of Christian Spiritualism, No. 827 West 45th street, New York City. Inquiries welcome. No healing."

On the reverse side of the card in the "professor's" own handwriting appeared the following announcement:

SOLICITED CHILDREN.

"The Truth Shall Make You Free—Arthur Griswold Long of London, Author of Lectures on Bible, Sex and Birth Control, etc., etc. Lessons in Mental Science, New Thought and Christian Mysterisms—Mume. Terme. TEN DOLLARS FOR TEN LESSONS in classes of three. Sex instruction for children—No. 28 Bernard street, Dorchester, Mass."

The same cards had been distributed previously with the address given as No. 483 Massachusetts avenue. The earlier cards also announced: "To parents—Where are my children?"—Special lessons on sex for girls, small fee payable. Write or call Professor Long."

USED GOVERNOR'S NAME.

Revelations of the love cult professor's advent into Dorchester and Boston social circles are made known by Mrs. Marguerite E. Bell, a widow, of No. 29 Kent street, Brookline.

To Mrs. Bell he showed alleged letters from Governor Cox, Mayor Curley and others in regard to attendances at his Plymouth Festival Club dinners.

"I first met Professor Long at a Pilgrim Festival rehearsal," said Mrs. Bell. "He was then a seedy-looking door attendant, who told us between rehearsals of the English blue blood that flowed through his veins.

"Soon we noticed that as each member of our set came in he jotted their names and addresses down. It was not long before we were being visited by the ticket-chopper professor and were listening to his glowing stories of the infinite of love and new thought and so on.

"Knowing my specialty was music, he evidenced great desire to teach me the 'art of healing by music.' I told him that good old-fashioned Presbyterianism was good enough for me as a religion, and that I did not quite understand his infinite love and new thought ideas.

"Although I and several of my friends were to attend his dinners, due to vacations and one thing or another, we did not, although he called here several times, asking me to interest my friends.

"He often asked me for money, but I never gave him any.

WAS "COURT CLERK."

In the other announcement in which he styles himself as "Professor A. Griswold Long" of London, the love cultist states: "The founder (himself was formerly for many years principal clerk to one of the judges in England, and is author of a key to the Scriptures under the title of 'Havilond Spiritualism,' 'Woman Under the Law'" and other writings on Mysticism. He finds this avatar of the spiritual message of the new conditions and its higher fulfillment in the monarchical doctrine of love and service, the great message of Jesus Christ to the world."

The announcement states that "invitations have been extended to the foremost of the State—Mayor James M. Curley and other prominent gentlemen."

girls came, though, and he read to them and played games with them.

Mrs. Henderson was not putting too much faith in her roomer's profession of religion, she says, and she warned neighbors not to allow their children to visit the professor while she was away.

Whenever the professor entertained the children of the neighborhood in his room, Mrs. Henderson kept a watchful eye on things. She says that he invariably left the door open. On Tuesday three little girls, whose ages ranged from seven to nine years, went up to the professor's room with him.

Mrs. Henderson shortly afterwards went upstairs and was surprised to see the door closed. She heard the children's voices questioning the professor and his answers. And what she heard induced her to listen.

What she heard and the little she could see by peeping through the crack of the door made her suddenly force her way in. All three children were pactially disrobed.

Long was ordered from the house and Mrs. Henderson immediately visited the parents of the children and told them what she had seen and heard. The children were questioned by their parents and a policeman was called. He arrested Long as he was preparing to make his escape.

RELATED BY GIRL.

Professor Long did not confine his classes to children. He was equally anxious to include girls of sixteen to nineteen in the course of love. How many he "taught" is not known, but there are at least four who, by mere conflicting of vacation dates, did not take the course.

Marguerite Withers of No. 101 Washburn avenue, Beachmont, was one of the four girls that nearly "fell" for the professor's smooth line of talk.

Ostensibly, he was to teach them how to become violinists. Incidentally, he would give lectures on "psychology." The four girls met the professor at a meeting of the Amort Lodge, a club in which various subjects, including love, were discussed, on June 1.

Miss Withers said of her first and only meeting with t professor:

"After the meeting, Mr. Long came up to me. With us was a little girl of 8. He asked if she was a member of the club and we said she was not. Then he asked me if I ever thought of playing a violin. I had been playing the organ, I said I always loved a violin but could never play one.

"He gave me a card and told me to come out to see him and he would show me how to become a violinist. Then one of the girls asked him if he would play and give us a lecture on psychology.

"I cannot play and lecture at the same time. I will give you a lecture on psychology," he replied.

"But our vacations interfered. I wrote to him that we would come out in August." Thank God the vacations prevented us from going."

NEW SHOE FREIGHT RATE IS JUSTIFIED

Washington, Aug. 11.—The proposed water and rail freight rate on boots and shoes from Boston and Providence to Petersburg, Richmond and South Richmond, Va., representing an increase on leather footwear and a reduction on rubber footwear, was found to be justified today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The proposed rates, however, will be subject to the general 10 per cent. reduction ordered by the commission on July 1, and will make the rate 48.5 cents per 100 pounds.

R. R. HEADS AND UNION CHIEFS IN SESSION

New York, Aug. 11. (By the Associated Press).—Heads of 140 American railroads today appointed a committee to recommend a reply to President Harding's latest proposal for settlement of the Nation-wide rail strike.

It was not indicated by those leaving the conference chamber what would be the nature of the reply to the administration's suggestion that the matter of seniority—at which the executives had balked at their last meeting here—should be left to the Railroad Labor Board.

T. DeWitt Cuyler, head of the Association of Railway Executives was confirmed in office head of the committee with judge Robert S. Lovett of the Union Pacific as chairman. The membership was reported to be approximately the same as that which rejected Mr. Harding's first proposal.

The committee was appointed after Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, a heavy holder of rail securities, was seen to arrive at the Grand Central terminal, where the conference was in progress. He was reported to be bearing an important message from financial interests, but was said not to have addressed the meeting.

First Session of Unions Lasts Two Hours

Washington, Aug. 11. (By the Associated Press).—Heads of seventeen railroad labor organizations, including those on strike and the larger operating brotherhoods, considered President Harding's latest strike settlement proposal for more than two hours today without reaching any decision as to what response should be made by the men on strike.

Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Engineers, who presided at the session which adjourned shortly after noon, said another meeting would be held later in the day but that probably no answer would be drawn up before tomorrow.

Workers Abandon Trains in Desert

San Francisco, Aug 11 (By the Associated Press).—Paralysis of the entire western territory of the Santa Fe system was the prospect facing officials of that railway today as a result of the sudden walkout of members of the "Big Four" brotherhoods, the engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen, on several Far Western roads.

The union men explained that their action was taken as a protest against armed guards on railway property and against the alleged condition of certain equipment.

Several passenger trains, including the eastbound California Limited, deserted by their crews, were stalled at points in Arizona, or southeastern California. Some were stranded in scorchingly hot desert spots.

Transcontinental Line Faces Tieup

Chicago, Aug. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—Serious threats to traffic by reason of trainmen to move trains at points where troops are on guard; renewed outbreaks of violence resulting in several deaths, and the possibility of walkouts by maintenance of way men on various roads marked the progress of the strike of shopcrafts employes as railroad heads and union leaders gathered for conferences today to consider separately President Harding's proposal for ending the strike.

Switchmen at Moberly, Mo., returned to work after a short walkout. But firemen there voted not to aid in the movement of freight trains until the demands of the striking shopmen were met.

A complete tie-up of trains on both divisions of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad through Evansville, Ind., was indicated today when engineers and firemen refused to take out trains known as first and second No. 9. It was reported firemen will refuse to man all trains today, but that some of the engineers will answer their calls.

Two non-union employes of the New York Central Lines in the Collinwood yards at Cleveland, one a dispatcher and the other a call boy, were shot and killed on a street corner. Their slayer escaped.

WESTERN R. R. GETS NEW ENGLAND MEN

Springfield, Aug. 11.—Announcement was made here today by an agent of the Northern Pacific railroad that men were being sent from this city, Hartford, Ct., and Providence, R. I., to fill vacancies in the ranks of shop workers on that road. It was said that considerable success was being met with here and that several more men had been sent West from here in the last two days.

"OH, LORD!" MURIEL McCORMICK SAYS

Chicago, Aug. 11.—When Muriel McCormick was asked what she thought of her father's marriage to Ganna Walska she exclaimed excitedly: "What did you say? My father married to Walska?"

MacDERMOTT, MOVIE STAR, ARRESTED

New York, Aug. 11.—Marc MacDermott, motion picture actor and vaudeville performer, who lives on West Ninety-third street, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Lisenstein on an order obtained by his wife, Mrs. Miriam Nesbitt MacDermott, in her suit for separation which she has started in Westchester County.

Argument on her application for $10,000 temporary alimony and $5,000 counsel fee is to come up in the court in White Plains.

Mr. MacDermott, according to his wife, has indicated that he will go to California to make his home, after finishing an engagement in vaudeville in Boston next week. He was released on $5,000 bail. Mrs. MacDermott alleged cruelty and abandonment.

The MacDermotts were married in Loonia, N. J., in April, 1916. MacDermott played the male lead with Elsie Ferguson in the motion picture "Poor Little Peppina" and vaudeville sketch is said to be "I Haven't Time." According to his wife he earned last year approximately $25,000, of which more than $16,000 came from contracts with William Fox.

She describes herself as an actress "of prominence and ability and generally described as a leading lady." She had a lead with James K. Hackett in "The Tree of Knowledge," played with Henry E. Dixey in "Reaping the Music" with W. H. Crane in "David Harum," and also has had parts with Ada Rehan.

Accompanying the papers are alleged extracts from letters which Mrs. MacDermott says her husband received from Helen Gilmore, who was leading lady in his vaudeville sketch, "The Investment." In these communications Miss Gilmore is said to have written, among other things, "Marc, what a wonderful wooer you are."

DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE HUB WOMAN

Montreal, Quebec, Aug. 11.—Captain A. W. Howard of Brockiyn, N. Y., was drowned in the Kennebecasis River about thirty-five feet off shore near the summer community of Renforth near St. John, N. B., while attempting to rescue Mrs. Archie Wilmot of Boston, when Mrs. Wilmot went beyond her depth.

Captain Howard reached Mrs. Wilmot, but was unable to control her struggles and went down. He did not come up and more than an hour and a half elapsed before the body was recovered with the aid of grappling irons.

The pulmotor was rushed from the city, but Captain Howard's body had been immersed too long. Mrs. Wilmot's cries attracted immediate attention and a bot was pushed out and she was rescued.

SAY CAMP GRANT FIRE INCENDIARY

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 11.—Fire in the Camp Grant barracks was brought under control early today after eight units in the hospital had been destroyed and twenty isolated buildings damaged. Several soldiers were injured slightly while aiding firemen in fighting the flames. Four soldiers who fell through the burning floor escaped with minor injuries.

Camp authorities declared the fires were of incendiary origin. The barracks, erected during the war, were built and equipped at a cost exceeding $1,000,000.

SUES HUSBAND SHE SAYS ABUSED HER

Charging that her husband pulled her hair and otherwise abused her, Mrs. Claudia F. Hoffman of Arlington today entered suit for divorce against Arthur M. Hoffman of Malden in Middlesex Superior Court, Enid Cambridge, Mrs. Hoffman's suit cites that they were married in Andover June 23, 1911, and that they lived in Boston, Stoneham and Andover. There is a son Carl, aged eight years. Mrs. Hoffman charges that the trouble there were living in Stoneham in November and December, 1914, and in January, 1915, her husband maltreated her.

When she was assured that dispatches to that effect had reached here she ejaculated feelingly:

telling of the fight with the fire and the vessel's progress.

"Explosion terrific," came an early message. "Flames shot higher than mastheads. Several dead, several dying and some missing."

Later message: "After slowing down to ascertain damages, Captain David ordered full speed ahead. In meantime wireless and other officers quieted frightened passengers and assured them there was no danger."

"Ship was pursuing normal course and speed when explosion occurred without warning. Flames for few minutes like geyser of fire."

"Fire was fought by firemen and sailors. Forward bunker coal in No. 2 hold caught fire, but the blaze did not burn through the ship's structure. The sailors poured tons of water on the blaze. Captain David began investigation. Casualties confined to engineer's department."

"The George Washington was rapidly nearing the Adriatic late today."

The Washington was the first vessel to speed to the liner's assistance. A later message picked up at Bar Harbor described the explosion:

"Heat was terrific. Shock vessel felt plain in stern. Passengers badly frightened but calmed by crew. Proceeding toward New York under full steam."

The first message, which stated that the Adriatic was proceeding slowly on her course for New York, said:

"Explosion in No. 3 hold. Endeavoring to locate trouble. May need assistance. Proceeding.

"DAVID, Commander."

The Adriatic's second message sent a few minutes after the first stated:

"Full explosion. Am proceeding slowly. Position now latitude 41.23 N., longitude 51.41 W."

The Naval Radio at the Charlestown Navy Yard soon reported another message saying that the Adriatic was having some success in fighting the results of the explosion. This message said:

"Have some success with explosion in No. 3 hold."

Naval authorities took this news to mean that the Adriatic's crew was making a winning fight in No. 3 hold against either the action of water or quenching of fire, but could not determine which.

The Naval Communications Bureau at New York reported today it had picked up a message from a vessel in the path of the Adriatic and that the Adriatic "was proceeding on her course."

The Naval Radio Station at Bar Harbor also reported to the Communications Bureau as follows:

"Adriatic giving position as latitude 41.23 North and longitude 51.41 West, has reported to Charlestown of an explosion in her No. 3 hold. The Adriatic is proceeding.

Adriatic's Skipper Radios Thanks To the American

S. S. Adriatic, Aug. 11. — American, Boston, Mass. Many thanks for your kind message. Please apply White Star office, Boston, for information.

DAVID.

The Boston American received the foregoing wireless from Captain David of the liner Adriatic in response to a radio congratulating him on the ship's good fortune and his efficient work in handling a grave situation.

The Adriatic is one of the largest vessels in the Atlantic service. She is a twin-screw steamer, 709 feet long, built in Belfast in 1906 by the Harland & Wolff Co. She has 15,658 tonnage. The Adriatic was at one time in the Boston-Liverpool service, and many of her officers are well known in Boston shipping circles.

During the war the Adriatic carried war munitions to England, but escaped unscathed from the submarines of Germany, despite the fact that she was several times marked for destruction.

She has been in only one serious accident since she went into service. That was in 1919, when the Adriatic collided into another steamer, the St. Angelo, in a heavy fog over the Atlantic coast. The St. Michael, a British freight ship, was badly injured below the waterline.

The Boston office of the White Star Line issued the following statement:

"An explosion, due to spontaneous combustion, occurred at 4 p. m. in No. 3 lower hold of the Adriatic. The ship was thoroughly examined after the explosion by Captain David, who found that no structural damage had been done. The ship is now under full speed and will arrive in New York Sunday afternoon.

"One fireman and one coal trimmer are dead, one fireman missing and one electrician, one fireman and three coal trimmers badly hurt.

"The vessel carried an extra supply of bunkering coal due to the United States regulations requiring all ships in trans-Atlantic trade to coal up for the round trip in case the coal strike situation in this country should become acute.

"On board the Adriatic were 202 first class passengers, 450 second class and 376 third class. None of the passengers was injured."

PEARL WHITE'S DOUBLE KILLED IN LEAP

New York, Aug. 11.—John Stevenson, thirty-eight years old, of No 125 Washington place, a film actor employed at the Paths studios, No 1909 Park avenue, working as a double for Pearl White in a new screen serial thriller, "Plunder," missed his swing from an elevated girder, to which he leaped from the top of a bus at Seventy-second street and Columbus avenue, while camera men kept on grinding.

Stevenson suffered a fractured skull from which he died in Roosevelt Hospital at 10:30 o'clock.

Stevenson, dressed as a girl, blond curls and all, and said to have been impersonating Miss White, although somewhat taller, was employed to perform in Miss White's stead. He wore a white dress, white stockings, patent leather shoes and a blond wig.

The bus rumbled under the structure, where the conductor usually calls the signals for those on top, "Now, hold your seats." Once under the big steel framework the blonde haired figure in the front seat poised for the leap. It calculated to a foot, to provide the thrill, and jumped, hands outstretched to grip the overhanging girder.

Only the film which recorded the scene will be able to tell whether Stevenson actually reached the girder or not. In the twinkling of an eye he was flung forward in the wake of the bus, probably after misjudging his leap.

The momentum of the swing apparently had carried him far beyond his objective, adding greater weight to the fall. Had he dropped in a straight line from the structure he would have fallen about twenty-two to twenty-five feet.

REPORT GERMAN MORATORIUM ARRANGED

Paris, Aug. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Germany, says a dispatch to the Havas Agency from London, will be asked for a moratorium until the end of this year.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Announcement of the signing of an agreement between the United States and Germany for a mixed claims commission to determine American war claims against Germany was followed today by a statement from Senator Underwood of Alabama, Democratic leader in the Senate, that he intended nevertheless to press his bill for establishment of an American instead of a mixed commission.

Senator Underwood said the administration plan did not provide a legal method for determining or paying Americans who had suffered damages and did not provide for disposition of German property taken over by the Alien Property Custodian.

TUG CAPSIZED BY OWN TOW LINE

New York, Aug. 11.—The tug boat Clarence P. Howland was overturned and sunk in an odd accident off Staten Island today when a tangled line in a twin-screw steamer took two members of her crew of six lowe their lives.

The tug was towing the Texas Steamship Company's steamer Roanoke to the Erie Basin and when she altered down the steamer floated by, causing the slack hawser to be come looped under the tug's stern. The tug was whipped over on her side in an instant and disappeared within two minutes.

Four of the crew were picked up by passing steamers.

MEXICANS CHECK RECOGNITION TALK

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Secretary Hughes' statement that the recent decisions of the American Supreme Court, dealing with the retroactivity of Article 27 of the Constitution, do not carry effective guaranteeing for all classes of American properties in Mexico, has given a check to the talk of recognition of Mexico by the United States of the present Mexican regime. The statement, which was issued here by Mexican embassy in Washington, was given out at the Foreign Office without comment.

ABANDON AERIAL ANTENNAE IN RADIO

Washington, Aug. 11.—Experiments have convinced postoffice experts that the day of aerial antennae for wireless receiving has passed. According to Superintendent J. C. Edgerton of the radio section, the department has been using "large vertical-outside-multiple turnlongs." "underground horizontal-loops" and "underground-antennae," and eliminating much static interference.

'PRINCE' POSED IN NEW YORK AS LEADING MANHATTAN SURGEON

HAD JAP GIRL AS NURSE

Claimed He Was Badly Hurt at Verdun and Had Silver Plate in Head

New York, Aug. 11.—Information concerning escapades and experiences of the spurious Prince Henri de Bourbon continued to reach New York in dispatches yesterday from Atlantic seaboard States.

From Southern Pines, N. C., came word that the dashing pretender, Harold Schwarm, had appeared there last January, where, as "Harold G. Vanderlilt," hard up for funds, he had been a waiter in a restaurant.

In the same town, said D. F. Mc Adam, manager of the Southern Pines Hotel, the "Prince" worked as a bellboy for the first three months of 1917 under the name of Harold Van Huren. His explanation was that he was working his way from New York to Florida on a wager.

Greenville, Me., was another of many New England towns to report that Harold Schwarm had undoubtedly been in their midst. Positive identification of him from published photographs was made by the sheriff of Piscataquis County, as the young man who called himself Dr. Orville Dewey, a relative of Admiral Dewey.

BORROWED FROM MANY.

Various persons in Maine, it was reported, were looking for the "Doctor" on bridge loans. The "kinsman" of Dewey was believed to be identical with the New York "Prince Henri de Bourbon" and the man who married a Dorchester girl as a physician, when he was a dishwasher at the Hospital for the Insane at Taunton, Mass. He arrived in Greenville in the middle of June.

The exalted Connecticut River shaker, who proclaimed himself the French heir apparent, started low on the ladder of royalty.

At No. 242 Edgecomb avenue in Harlem, where he gathered around himself a valet, a housekeeper, secretary and a one-armed mentor, the young dashing "prince" let it be known that he was Sir Reginald Van De Vere, head surgeon of the Manhattan State Hospital on Wards Island.

Miss Caroline Long of the Edgecomb avenue address, who knew the "Prince" well, said yesterday that he had been highly attentive to a young Japanese girl who came to the house several times. Other persons there that she was his assistant at the hospital and was helping him conduct several medical experiments that were soon to startle the medical world.

TO MARRY JAP GIRL.

He further told Miss Long that he intended to marry the Japanese.

Miss Long said to a reporter for the American: "The supposed prince came to this address in January, 1921. He sublet an apartment from Mr. Clarke and mailed a plate on the door reading Sir Reginald Van De Vere. He seemed plentifully supplied with funds, paid his rent promptly and was always immaculately dressed. At one time, however, he did attempt to borrow $10 from a tenant. He did not succeed.

Shortly after Van De Vere had sublet the apartment, said Miss Long, the woman from whom he had sublet it went to the rooms to get some silver that she had left there. In her search for it, she found a small skull in a bureau drawer.

'LOVE NESTER' STOLE WIVES TO GET EVEN

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 11.—Clarence Warner, Cadillac farmer, arrested here in a "love nest" apartment with the wives of two other men, wrecked their homes to carry out a vow made when his own home was wrecked, it was charged today by Gren Hyatt, bridegroom of three weeks, whose wife was one of Warner's companions in the love nest.

Hyatt declared that Warner's wife was stolen by a soldier during the war. Warner once informed Hyatt that he intended to spend the rest of his life shattering the domestic [illegible] of former service men.

"I laughed when he told me of his vow," Hyatt recalled. "I said I'd have to look out for my bride. But it had no idea that he planned to wreck my home to carry out his threat."

Mrs. Hyatt fell prey to a strange spell which Warner could cast at will, she told her husband. The Hyatts left Grand Rapids Tuesday but Hyatt returned late yesterday saying his wife had left him again. He refused to prosecute her for her share in the elopement.

Warner and the other woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Ines Sleeper, mother of two children, are still held on statutory charges which the woman's husband said he would press.

Warner refused to discuss the report that he had vowed to wreck ex-soldiers' homes because his own was wrecked. Both Hyatt and Sleeper are veterans of the World War.

WEST END WOMAN TRIES SUICIDE

Mrs. Bella Katzian, 37, of No. 53 Barton street, West End, is on the danger list at the Relief Hospital from inhaling gas. Her brother, Morris Goldberg, found her unconscious today on the floor of her room, with gas flowing from a jet. The police say it is attempted suicide, but no motive has been established.

HUNT SPRINGFIELD MAN AS SLAYER

Springfield, Aug. 11.—Alleged evidence of premeditation in the killing of Mrs. Elisabeth Posusky by Daniel Nahornia, a former boarder in her home last night, was found today by the police in the discovery that Nahornia purchased yesterday afternoon the weapon with which the shooting was done. State police were called in today to assist in tracking Nahornia and a clew was being followed that took the searchers out of the city. Confidence was expressed of an early arrest. The supposed motive for the killing was a request of Mrs. Posusky that Nahornia repay a loan. Nahornia disappeared immediately after the shooting and the woman died in a few minutes.

FRAMING NEW WAGE SCALE FOR MINERS

Cleveland, Aug. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Work of framing a wage scale agreement which union officials said they expect to use as a basis of settlement in the nation-wide soft coal strike was begun today by a committee of twenty-one miners and operators. President John L. Lewis of the miners and Michael Gallagher of this city, president of the Pittsburgh Vein Coal Operators' Association of Ohio, headed the committee, the entire personnel of which was selected from the trade committee of the general conference called here to consider peace plans.

Demands of both the miners and the operators were to be placed before the committee of twenty-one, and its report was not expected to be ready for presentation to the general conference until next week. The miners stood put on their demand for re-establishment of the contracts that were in force just before the start of the strike more than four months ago, but the operators' demands had not been made known by the producers' committee members.

The operators participating in the conference were shown by its credentials' committee to control about 70 per cent. of the coal production of the Central Competitive Field, which comprises Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Approximately two-thirds of this tonnage was that controlled by Ohio operators.

CAR BLOWN UP IN BUFFALO STRIKE

Buffalo, Aug. 11.—Four persons narrowly escaped death today when a Fillmore avenue car was dynamited near the quarries between Best Delaware and Kensington avenues. The force of the explosion, which was heard for blocks, lifted the car off the rails, broke all the windows and greatly damaged the floor. The trucks dropped back on the tracks and thus saved the car from being wrecked. About a pound of unexploded dynamite was picked up along the rails after the explosion. No arrests have been made.

OFFICER SHOOTS MAN IN R. R. YARDS

Dennis Reardon of Holyoke was shot by Officer Harland Coogan in the Boston & Maine yards at Northampton. The bullet struck him in the back and his condition is serious. Reardon, according to railway officials, was one of a group of young men Coogan came upon in the yards. The officer said they started running when he appeared and that he opened fire when they failed to obey his order to stop.

500 GERMANS IN ALSACE EXPELLED

Germans expelled from Alsace-Lorraine under the new French regulations must leave all their property behind.

GEM THIEF IS FREED FOR SILENCE

Why is Harry Ingalls, confessed jewel thief, being spirited out of America today?

For what reason was the young English manservant taken secretly from Salem court in a limousine at the behest of the Payne Whitney family.

These and similar disconcerting questions are being asked today following whispers of a gay party held at the Whitney summer home at Beverley Farms. Hostess at the party at which gems valued at $200,000 were stolen, was Miss Joan Whitney, charming daughter of the New York financier.

According to investigators, Ingalls will embark today or tomorrow for England and will carry with him the secret. The veil of mystery that has surrounded the entire case was only partially lifted with the disclosure of the identity of the victims of the jewel robbery.

A party sponsored by the Whitney family was in progress and Ingalls, handsome young man servant, was delegated to aid guests in amusing themselves. According to nearby residents debutantes and scions of millionaire families held forth on lawns and private swimming pools in appropriate attire.

Young women in artistic garb are said to have danced while adoring youths strummed on string instruments.

Then in the midst of the prolonged night merriment a sudden announcement was made that one of the guests had missed a pearl necklace. Forgetting poise and the niceties, the guests rushed to where they had discarded wraps and jewels only to find that priceless gems had disappeared.

POLICE NOTIFIED.

Soon cash and gems, the property of the hostess, were also missed.

Every guest and servant was questioned by Inspector Lehan. At last suspicion fastened on Harry Ingalls, "servant-host" of the party. Armed with the credentials from England nobility that had secured him his berth with the Whitneys, Ingalls departed with the police inspector.

After a "third degree" lasting many hours Ingalls at last broke down, according to the police. He directed detectives to a room in Salem where five $1,000 bills, five pieces, diamond brooches and pearl necklaces were found. Police declare Ingalls confessed to taking the gems during the party and hiding them in Salem.

FREED WITHOUT ARREST

Ingalls was then hailed into court on "vagrancy" and after a private session was freed without arraignment or arrest. Every effort was made to prevent the name of his employer from becoming public.

Hardly had the court agreed to free him for lack of prosecution than a large limousine rolled up to the court house. Then, smiling and debonair, Harry Ingalls, was ushered to a New York train.

At the Whitney residence a caretaker told reporters that Ingalls is still employed. The servant said Mrs. Whitney had gone to New York and professed to know nothing of any party. He did say, however, that Ingalls had had a fight with a number of chauffeurs down at the garage and that Ingalls had been made known by the producers' committee members.

The operators participating in the conference were shown by its credentials' committee to control about 70 per cent. of the coal production of the Central Competitive Field, which comprises Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Approximately two-thirds of this tonnage was that controlled by Ohio operators.

Hi! Flappers. Here's a Contest for You Only---Brains, Beauty and Pep--- Who's Got the Most?

Boston American's Own Flapper Will Enroll You on "Flapper Day" at St. Margaret's Circus in Dorchester Next Week.

The Winning Flapper Will Get the Snappiest Fitted Week-End Case She Ever Saw—Watch the Boston American for the Rules.

BY THE FLAPPER.

Who's the smartest flapper in town? Who's the peppiest? Who's the easiest to look upon?

These are not just fresh questions. They're important.

Maybe you've noticed, whenever a preacher wants to liven up his sermons he begins to rant and rave against the flip-flapper. Same with reformers, politicians, school teachers, editors and just plain tea-cup gossips. S'gone far enough.

We've got to prove that the flapper is not a silly little nit-wit with flying bobbed hair and flat feet. She's got brains, our little Boston flapper. But to go on with the story:

ST. MARGARET'S FOR 'EM

It seems there's one Boston church that's with the flapper from the word go. That's St. Margaret's, Dorchester. The folks in that parish believe in the flapper.

And so, when St. Margaret's big six-day circus opens for the week of August 14, Monday, the opening day, is to be Flapper Day.

The Boston American has been asked to be on the circus grounds on that day to enroll the flaps in a big brains-beauty-and-pep contest.

Open to flappers from six to sixty.

LISTEN, FLAPPERS.

Can't be too serious and important about this.

When Nero was playing a four-eleven on his uke, the Roman jane was just a jane.

When Napoleon was telling Josephine that he had to stay out late in order to conquer a few more acres, a skirt was simply a skirt.

Ever since Adam lost his head and gave up his heart for a rib for a wife, a woman has been only a woman, take it from Kipling and a lot of other he-poets.

That's why this flapper contest is an event. The Boston she who is designated as the Ideal Flapper will live in history. This is the first era in modern civilization that woman has been given a name as a type.

SOME SNAP TO PRIZE.

It means more than a popularity contest. A horse may be popular. It's more than a beauty contest. Many a Dumb Dora is easy to look at.

The ideal flapper must have get-up, go, pepper and punch.

And there's something in it besides fame. St. Margaret's parish is prepared to give to the winning flapper the snappiest fitted week-end case that ever went to Nantasket, Narragansett or even Newport. And that's that.

The circus and fair starts Monday with a big circus parade through the streets of Dorchester. The committee is planning to take care of 15,000 at the Sheppard grounds, Massachusetts avenue, Dorchester.

And on the last day, Saturday, August 19, the flapper award will be made.

The rules of the contest will be simple as pie. Watch the Boston American for further details.

—From the Flapper's advance notice of the unique contest for Flappers to be staged in Dorchester.

GREENE REPLIES TO QUESTIONS ABOUT STOCK

Henry V. Greene has answered in the Supreme Court fifty-nine interrogatories propounded to him by the Commercial Finance Corporation, which was one of the subsidiary companies controlled and managed by the H. V. Greene Company.

Greene says he is not a great many persons to become directors in the Commercial Finance Corporation, among whom were Walter G. Burns, Henry B. Robinson and Edward C. Campbell.

About December 28, 1917, Greene says, he offered to underwrite the entire issue of preferred stock of the Commercial Finance Corporation, and that upon the acceptance of his offer he received 19,998 shares of the common stock of that company, 15,000 of which were to be given by way of bonus to subscribers of preferred stock.

It was understood by Greene and the officers of the Commercial Finance Corporation, according to Greene, that he was to retain whatever amount received above $47.50 a share for the sale of preferred stock. This excess, he says, was to pay the salesmen, sales manager and other officials.

None of the 19,998 shares of common stock was sold, Greene says. "It was given as a bonus to purchasers of preferred stock, with the exception of 4,998 shares, and I gave more than one half of that stock, or about half of it, to the men who served as directors in your company."

Green says he organized the H. V. Greene Company after he had found out the exorbitant demands of the stock salesmen of the Commercial Finance Corporation. The incorporators were H. V. Greene who took 1763 shares; E. C. Campbell, 101; A. D. Howard, 1; Alice M. Parker, 100; Lillian Coleman, 100; Mary Warren 100; and Nellie Black, 50. These persons, Greene says, were all invited by him to become incorporators.

surance. Injured workers get the benefits.

Now Governor Edwards announces a cut of 20 per cent. in the State's charge for liability insurance, and predicts an increase next Winter of the benefits paid to men injured at their work.

That's a sample of "evils of public ownership" of which you hear occasionally. How does it impress you?

Rumania will sell in the United States bonds "offered at 87." You pay $870 and get a $1,000 bond. Rumania is a fine country, abounding in wealth. Her people are honorable and industrious. BUT—

Three hundred and thirty dollars is a big premium for a loan of $870. Rumania nestles within the grip of Russia. If that monster bear comes back to full strength, Rumania will be grabbed. If that happens and Trotzky says, "I'm not interested in redeeming those cut-rate Rumanian bonds," please don't ask the United States to send your fellow citizens to be shot in the effort to collect your money.

Our grandfathers did that for the financial fools that bought the Czar's bonds, but probably wouldn't do it again.

With coal mines closed, mules are brought to the surface, many eating grass and seeing the sun for the first time in years. Veterinarians of Hazelton, Pa., deny the old statement that mules kept underground in dark mine tunnels lose their sight. After twenty years in the dark mules can see.

Veterinarians of a different kind ought to examine the two-legged mules that watch the stockticker, while they run mines and railroads, and see what effect that has on their sight.

Hides will come in free because shoe factories want cheap leather. There are many shoe factories in Senator Lodge's State, and if the farmers got protection on hides Lodge might be beaten. This is a tactic, to oblige the gentleman, puts hides on the free list. That is the way Congress adjusts, in the interest of politics, the tariff, vitally important to every citizen.

They are talking a great deal about the Constitution at San Francisco's American Bar Association meeting. A committee of the learned gentlemen says: "No man is so poor or obscure that he cannot in the hour of threatened injury turn to the Constitution as his protection against the wrongful acts of the rich and socially prominent." It's a good Constitution, but that statement by the lawyers is pretty bumcombe. Every one of them knows that a man poor and obscure can be and is fought for years in the courts, and that to fight for his rights means ruin. That condition of affairs is due to lawyers that prefer profitable law business to quick justice.

CHILD BEATING CHARGED TO PRISONER

Bath, Me., Aug. 11.—After a hand to hand encounter in a dark chamber in the home of Mathew Winn at Arrowsic, Henry C. Carlton of that town, succeeded in overcoming Thomas McLaughlin, and threw him through a second story window to the ground, where he was captured by a party of men who had accompanied Mr. Carlton to the house.

McLaughlin is accused of cruelly assaulting two young children of Mr. Carlton in the woods near the home of the Carltons.

Search was made for the man but it was not until today that the searchers had reason to believe that he was at the Winn home. They went there and Mr. Carlton entered and searched the house.

In a dark chamber he found the man for whom he was seeking. McLaughlin was armed with a razor, and a fierce hand to hand encounter took place, in which Carleton was severely slashed on the right forearm in several places. He finally managed to drive the hand of McLaughlin, which held the razor, against the chimney, and broke the blade, then he gathered the man in his arms and threw him out the window to the ground.

McLaughlin was seized by Charles Crosby, Guy Crosby and Ibra K. Lawrence, who had accompanied Mr. Carlton to the house. The children of Mr. Carlton who were severely beaten over the head and body with a club which, it is alleged, was wielded by McLaughlin, were Gertrude, aged twelve, and Roland, three and one-half years old. McLaughlin is forty-one years of age and has served in the navy for eleven years.

COURT WAKES SONS TO PARENTAL DUTY

Leo, Vincent, Thomas and Rosario Scarlotta, brothers, charged in Central Court with failing to support their aged mother, Mary Scarlotta, eighty years old and nearly blind, were found guilty by Judge Murray and their case continued to August 24. The men all agreed to contribute to the support of their mother from now until the disposition of the case, also to send her to a hospital for treatment of her eyes.

WOMAN FINED $50 FOR SELLING LIQUOR

Maggie Navickis, of No. 397 West Second street, South Boston, charged with making an illegal sale of liquor, pleaded guilty in South Boston District Court today and was fined $50. Judge Logan, upon the woman's request, gave her until October 11. to pay the fine.

Eva Obuchowicz, of No. 341 C street, South Boston, charged with keeping and exposing intoxicating liquor, had her case continued. Two quarts of liquor were seized at her house.

CORK DAMAGED $15,000,000 IN BATTLE

Belfast, Aug. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Raiders wrecked a train on the Great Northern Railroad near Dublin today interrupting traffic northward.

Dublin, Aug. 11.—State troops today control Cork and Clonmel, the two most important strongholds of the Republicans in southwestern Ireland.

Irregular troops that fled from Cork are moving into the interior of Kerry County, according to reports received here today.

It is reported the damage from explosions and fire may reach $15,000,000. All the public buildings in Cork and Queenstown were destroyed by the rebels.

Latest advices from Queenstown said that rebels were still holding out amidst the ruins of ravaged buildings in Patrick street.

Thousands of refugees have fled into the country from Cork and Queenstown.

A strong Irregular force has been concentrated northwest of Cork with the evident intention of covering the retreat of the Republicans.

A considerable amount of territory to the northwest and north of Cork is still under control of the Irregulars, but the defeat of this force is expected within a few days.

The whereabouts of Eamon De Valera and Erskine Childers is still unknown, but they are believed to be with the main Republican force.

EDISON CO. MUST INSTALL LIGHTS

The Cambridge Electric Light Company will be compelled to furnish electricity to Edwin Hale Abbot, owner of property at Nos. 39-36 Brattle street, Cambridge, under a decision of the Department of Public Utilities.

The company had refused to install separate equipment in Abbot's newly built house unless he paid for installation. This he refused to do, claiming that the building was separate from his other property in the same block. The department found his claims "just and reasonable."

BOSTON WOMAN VICE-PRESIDENT OF C.T.A.U.

Mrs. Maurice Dineen of Boston was elected second vice-president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America at the convention just closed at Philadelphia. Rev. M. J. O'Connor was re-elected secretary. The Boston delegation, numbering one hundred and five, gave a banquet in honor of the newly elected officers in the Hotel Walton. W. H. Cuddy of Boston was toastmaster. The sentiment of the convention was that American ships that sell liquor should be seized on the ocean or the prohibition amendment repealed.

POLITICAL NOTES

William Shaw McCallum, candidate for District Attorney of the Southeastern district to succeed Frederick G. Katzmann, in a statement today, said: "I brand as false, malicious, insidious and as being inspired by one or both of my opponents, the rumor circulated in Brockton that I am to withdraw in favor of either of them."

William J. Patron, candidate for District Attorney for Suffolk County, today accepted the challenge of Thomas C. O'Brien to debate on qualifications of office. Patron has mailed a written acceptance to O'Brien, asking him to name place and time and offering to share half of the expenses.

GANNA WALSKA BRIDE IN ROMANCE WATCHED BY WHOLE WORLD

MAY GO BACK TO OPERA

McCormick Millions and Influence Expected to Give Singer New Chance

Just gone from Paris to Zurich to meet her fiance, Max Oser, forty-seven-year-old riding master.

It was definitely stated in this newspaper a month ago that Mr. McCormick and Madame Walska would be married before September 15.

That date marks the second anniversary of Ganna's illfated matrimonial venture with Cochran.

The marriage makes Ganna Walska (born Puech, daughter of an humble Polish family, mistress of the Harvester Trust millions and stepmother of three of John D. Rockefeller's grandchildren.

By a queer quirk of fate, it was Mr. McCormick who introduced Ganna to her former (and third) husband, Mr. Cochran. Back in July, 1920, the three sailed on the Aquitania. Mr. McCormick was to sponsor the singer's unfortunate effort to sing "Zaza" at a gala performance of the Chicago Opera Company the following season.

FANCY ENCHAINED.

From the moment he met her Cochran's fancy was enchained. He followed Ganna over the continent. In late Summer he went to Zurich. At that time Ganna was a widow of a few months, her second husband, Dr. Frankel, having died in April, 1920.

Mr. McCormick, to whom even then the singer looked for friendly guidance, was in Zurich. Cochran pressed his suit with an ardor that is seldom surpassed. He sent the singer gorgeous roses, priceless jewels and large and costly automobiles. In mid-September, 1920, the world of wealth and society was astonished to read of the marriage of the middle-aged bachelor millionaire and the internationally advertised Ganna Walska.

Trouble developed soon after the honeymoon. Early in 1921 the couple returned to America. Ganna, proud of her voice, aspired to an operatic career. Mr. McCormick afforded her an opportunity to sing "Zaza" in Chicago. At least one director said her voice was unsuited to the part. Cochran opposed the venture. But she had her way.

FLED FROM CHICAGO.

Temperamental and other difficulties culminated in a sensational flight from Chicago, on the eve of her much-advertised debut. She came to New York, rejoined Cochran for a time, went to Paris and lived there until her divorce was granted.

Then came the astounding news of the McCormick divorce. The absence of accusations caused a deep feeling of relief to their friends, but it was openly predicted that the Harvester king would not remain a bachelor very long.

The Walska-Cochran divorce, with the highest paid legal talent in the world on both sides, occupied the front pages of the press of America and Europe for months. It was significant that the singer, after threatening to make it very costly for Mr. Cochran to secure his freedom, suddenly decided to permit him his divorce without large settlement.

The romance of Mathilde and her riding master cropped up. Then came the news that Mr. McCormick had undergone an operation to renew his youth. It was at first reported that he had submitted to a monkey gland operation. This was later denied.

At any rate, immediately upon convalescing from the operation Mr. McCormick, accompanied by his daughter, went to Paris. Even while arrangements for his marriage to Ganna were unquestionably being made, he denied the possibility of such a union.

DOUBLE WEDDING HINTED.

Paris, loving a sensation, talked of the likelihood of a double wedding. Mr. McCormick, who had at first interposed stern objections to the marriage of his daughter to Oser, was known to have shown a more tolerant feeling for the match.

It is said Ganna still has artistic aspirations. Her alliance will give her ample opportunities to indulge them.

Continental teachers, it is said, have wrought wonders with her hitherto faulty upper register notes. It would not surprise those who have followed her checkered career if she makes a successful operatic debut in New York or Chicago this Winter as Mrs. Harold F. McCormick.

Ganna is tall, slender, beautiful, of ivory and rose petal complexion, with large blue eyes that are cold, a wealth of chestnut hair—and of baffling age. In the barbaric jewels and startling gowns she loves, she is a striking figure.

At seventeen she eloped with Baron Archaile d'Engleborn, Russian officer. It is understood he was killed in the war. In 1915 she appeared in Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre in New York as a vaudeville performer and had married Dr. Joseph Frankel, famous specialist, whose death in April, 1920, left her in possession of a fortune.

McCormack Knot Is Not Legal In Illinois

Chicago, Aug. 11.— The wedding of Harold F. McCormick in Paris is not legal in this State, under the Illinois law, as he has been divorced less than a year.

If Mr. McCormick and his new bride return to Chicago it will be necessary, it is said, to have another ceremony performed after January 12, 1923, when the year from his divorce by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick will have elapsed.

Cincinnati, Aug. 11. (By the Associated Press).—The Railroad Labor Board will hear on August 21 the case of the 1,100 union telegraphers on the Big Four Railroad, who are now taking a strike vote over the interpretation of the working rules, said a message received today by officials of the Big Four Railroad from the Labor Board.

4 BOYS HELD IN SCHOOL BREAK IN ROXBURY

Special Officers Madden and Hall today took into custody William Maloy, fourteen, and his brother, James, twelve, of No. 234 Calumet street, and William Early, twelve, and Ralph Edward, sixteen, both of No. 33 Hayden street, Roxbury, in connection with the break at the Jefferson school, on Heath street, Roxbury, where considerable damage was done and larceny of small articles committed.

One of the acts of the intruders was to break open the telephone coin box and extract $4. The boys were permitted to return to their homes, but will appear in the Juvenile session of Roxbury Court next Friday.

HARDING CALLS SENATORS ON TARIFF

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Harding intervened today in the Senate fight over the flexible tariff provisions, outlining to Senators summoned to the White House the desirability of elasticity in the tariff during present shifting world conditions.

The Executive conferred first with Senator Oddie of Nevada, a leader of the Republican-Agricultural-tariff bloc, some members of which are opposed to the flexible plan in any form, and later saw Senator Freilinghuysen, Republican, New Jersey, sponsor of the "scientific" tariff plan.

SAYS BROTHER DRUGGED FOR MONEY

Montreal, Aug. 11.—Declaring his brother, Patrick Carey, of Buffalo, had been drugged to death for the $20,000 in cash and negotiable securities which he had on him, Dr. Hugh F. Carey of Chicago today called on the coroner to reopen the inquest into Carey's death here July 24.

Carey was picked up unconscious in a doorway on St. Cecile street and died of morphine poisoning at the General Hospital several hours later. An autopsy showed that he had taken or been given a sufficient quantity of morphine to kill several men.

After an inquest, Coroner McMahon held that the evidence did not show whether the death was due to an accident or not. With this open verdict the inquest was closed and the body buried. At that time it was supposed that Mr. Carey had only the few dollars found on him.

Dr. Carey, on his arrival, declared his brother had come to Montreal to start in business and that he had nearly $20,000 on his person.

LAWRENCE MAN IS HELD FOR MURDER

Lawrence, Aug. 11.—Giovanni Di Gloria was held without bail today when he was arraigned charged with the murder of Alfonse Milazzo, 35, a fellow employe of the Wood Woolen Mill. It is alleged that the accused fatally stabbed Milazzo. Hearing was set for August 16.

DRESS JUGGLING LANDS GIRL IN POLICE NET

Helen Ford, of Lexington street, East Boston, found guilty in Municipal Court of larceny of a dress from a department store, and given one month's suspended sentence in Charles Street Jail, believes in the old adage that second thief is bad owner.

Helen, it is alleged, went into a department store where she selected a dress. Going into a rest room she changed it for her own. She then took her own dress and hid it in the wash room of another department store. Later when she returned for it, she found it had disappeared. She raised an outcry. After the police heard her story they suspected her of purloining the dress she wore and charged her with the theft.

252,000 Boxes Already Sold

—— Boxes of Educator Cakelets at the original regular price of 39c each. Never before have these fancy tea Cakelets—beautifully embossed with artistic designs—rich in butter, eggs, chocolate, fine flavorings—some of them with delicious creamy fillings—all of them ideally suitable for the most exclusive service with tea, salads, desserts—never before have they sold for a price as low as now announced.

252,000 boxes—each box containing an assortment of 10 kinds—each box containing 30 individual Cakelets —do you realize that that means 7,560,000 of these exquisite dainties have gone out from Krackerland into the homes of New England to acquaint the people with a quality Cakelet, the like of which has never been made before either in Europe or America.

Why this remarkable low price offer? Why this combination special—a box of Cakelets and a package of Toasterettes—both for less than the price of the Cakelets alone? Simply because August is the big biscuit month of the year. Simply because, during this month, we want millions more of Educator Cakelets to go into new homes and tell for themselves the wonderful story of quality which Educators always tell when once they are tried.

There is no need of elaborating upon Toasterettes — a cracker you already know—that dainty, whole wheat wafer—salted, buttered, and toasted to a rich golden brown. No doubt the most popular salad cracker in the world today. For more than 30 years it has been making new friends and holding old ones.

The response to this announcement will be enormous. Each of our 300 Brookside Stores will do its best to fill the demand. Krackerland trucks will make daily deliveries to us. But we would suggest that you shop early—take immediate advantage of this offer which marks the first time since Cakelets were created that they have sold for a price as low as this.

CAMBRIDGE BABY NEARLY STUNG TO DEATH BY MOSQUITOES

RESIDENTS AROUSED BY PESTS

Promptly Join American's Fight to Wipe Out Insect Breeding Spots

Little Muriel Davies, University Park's "Swamp Baby." That is the name conferred on the five months old daughter of Mrs. Madeline Davies of No. 210 Fayerweather street, Cambridge, by other residents in the neighborhood.

True, Muriel was not stanchoned in a swamp as was the case of the orginal "Swamp Baby." She recons the loving care of her mother oh, but even a mother cannot vgh a baby all night and mosquitoes are no respecters of age or person.

Little Muriel is but one of the many pople in that section of Cambridge the Bawe been scourged by mosquitos. One night, just one night, recently, Muriel, twisting in her sleep, pled the netting from over her.

BITEN AND POISONED.

When the mother went to the crib in the morning she was horrified to fnd the baby a mass of bites, looking like a raw beefsteak," to quote the mother. For the army of mosquitoes from the swamp nearby had done its work.

Medical treatment was required. Poison set in and the baby suffered agony. Today she is still convalescing and her arms and face are still masses of sore looking bites.

University Park is mud. Mud clean through.

For years an old swamp bed, now near Gardner street has been the breeding spot for billions of mosquitoes. A deep, stagnant pool of water, protected from even the purifying winds by high knolls, this body of water has seen the birth of countless winged pests.

The city, according to residents of that section, has done nothing to alleviate conditions. A person cannot walk near the swamp after 7 o'clock in the evening without actual danger

SCREENS NO PROTECTION.

"It is impossible to describe what we have to put up with from mosquitoes out here," said pretty Mrs. Davies. "On a night that is even moderately warm it is long past midnight before people in this neighborhood can get to sleep.

"The screens seem to be little protection. On the night that Muriel was so badly bitten, all of the screens were securely in place but the mosquitoes got in, just the same. My husband was also badly bitten and one of his arms was badly swollen as a result.

Mrs. Marjorie Seaward of Fayerweather street corroborated Mrs. Davies in asserting that University Park is the worst place in Cambridge for mosquitoes.

With an ugly looking sore on his elbow, Neil Blaney of No. 197 Fayerweather street presented another bit of evidence of the ferocity of University Park mosquitoes.

HAD TO RUN AWAY.

"I was walking through the swamp one night and I had to run away from them (the mosquitoes), they were so thick. I used my cap to fight them off but when I got home there was a big lump on my elbow. I had to get a doctor to treat it and it was sore for over a week."

Mrs. Rita Maciel of No. 191 Fayerweather, grandmother of three active children, told of the suffering that had been caused in her household by the winged arrows.

Mrs. Clarence E. Johnson of No. 193 Fayerweather street was another victim. So badly did she fare at the hands of "wings" of the mosquito army that her left arm swelled to twice its normal size and it is still in a much swollen condition.

One and all residents of Fayerweather street have signified their intention of joining the Massachusetts Anti-Mosquito Association and help it in its battle against the mosquito pest.

Are you ready to do the same around your house? The Boston American will do its part in the general "clean-up" and in bringing to light any flagrant cases. Tell us of your mosquito troubles and perhaps we can help.

The committee comprises Tom Cooley, chairman; E. Englert, J. Leahy, J. F. Murphy, J. A. Marks, T. F. R. Walsh, W. J. Reid, H. J. Gullage, S. J. Willis, A. J. Launer and B. M Lichtenstein.

FAILS TO PROVE POLICE BEATING

Henry G. Spence of No. 11 Craft street, Roxbury, failed to substantiate his charge in Dedham court today that he had been assaulted by officers J. H. Curry and William Topham of the Wellesley police. Spence, who was charged with driving an auto while under the influence of liquor, requested a continuance yesterday in order to bring witnesses to support his charges. He failed to bring any today. Spence was fined $50 for the operating charge and the charge of drunkenness was filed.

DAUGHTER OF CANFIELD ROBBED

Mrs. Grace Chevalier of Brookline and New York, daughter of "Dick" Canfield, the gambler king, who was held up and robbed at the point of a gun by a burglar in Brighton figured in a thrilling gun pursuit in New York a few days ago after her apartments in the Waldorf Astoria hotel had been robbed of rare jewels, valued at more than $30,000.

As heiress to a big slice of her father's vast estate, Mrs. Chevalier has become a connoisseur of rare gems. She has a wonderful collection.

Grace attended a fashionable dinner party at the Waldorf Astoria a few nights ago. When she returned to her apartments up stairs she found them ransacked.

The hotel authorities sent a "S. O. S." to the police. A few hours later Mrs. Chevalier was summoned to the Thirtieth Street police station to see if she could identify a suspect arrested in Herald square.

As Mrs. Chevalier entered the station the prisoner was crawling out a rear window. He had eluded his guards, after giving the name of George W. McCrig. The police had recognized him as "Australian Phil."

The police gave chase. Mrs. Chevalier was almost swept off her feet in the excitement. She hastened into the street just as the police started firing at the fugitive.

"Australian Phil" was recaptured after a spirited chase, which included a slide for life out a chean hotel on a rope made of bed sheets. Then it was discovered that the rooms of other guests had been ransacked too.

In 1919, Mrs. Chevalier was surprised by a burglar in her apartments in Brighton. A young man invaded her rooms, poked a revolver close to her face, gagged and bound her and locked her in a closet while he collected an assortment of valuables worth $8,500. William Lemar was arrested in Cleveland and was brought back to Boston by Inspector Dorsey. He admitted the holdup and was sentenced.

Loses Again

SCHLEBER LOVE TANGLE IS SETTLED

The complicated mass of lawsuits resulting from the marital differences of Major Louis E. Schleber and his wife, Mrs. Myrtle M. Schleber of Winthrop, has been settled out of court.

The divorce action brought by Mrs. Schleber, alleging desertion and non-support, will not be contested. But Mrs. Schleber has withdrawn her suit against Mrs. Eleanor J. K. Taylor of Philadelphia, wife of a war veteran, whom she charged with alienating Major Schleber's affections.

The settlement resulted from a conference of attorneys. Following the conference entries of "neither party" were made, ending the suits.

The suits thus quashed include:

Major Schleber's suit against Attorney Jasper N. Johnson, his wife's counsel, and Lieutenant Douglas of the Winthrop police, charging false arrest.

Mrs. Schleber's suit against Attorney Alonzo E. Yont, her former counsel, charging breach of confidence.

These two suits grew out of the kidnaping by Major Schleber of their small son "Bobby." According to Mrs. Schleber's statements at the time hypnotic influence was used to steal the child, and the boy was taken to a house in Philadelphia, occupied by Major Schleber, and Mrs. Taylor.

As a result of the kidnaping Schleber was arrested. He sued Attorney Johnson and Lieutenant Douglas for $50,000, the amount also asked by his wife in her suit against Attorney Yonts.

Schleber was indicted for non-support, pleaded nolo and the case was filed on his promise to pay $200 a month alimony.

We feel assured, because of action now being taken, that a sufficient amount of coal will be mined and that it will be transported by rail and waterways.

Distribution will be controlled, making necessary piece-meal delivery. This will require a tremendous increase in the number of vehicles to do the work.

During the months just ahead our increased industrial and agricultural transportation necessities must be taken care of at the same time that this extraordinary amount of coal is being handled. It is therefore more than likely that embargoes will be placed on short hauling of general merchandise. Such a ruling will make necessary a heavy and immediate increase of motor truck transportation.

We therefore suggest that you look over your equipment and if it needs any repairing or overhauling that you have it done now, or, if instead of overhauling or repairing you wish to trade for a new or larger truck- do it now. If you need additional trucks, purchase them now.

Our Sales and Service stations in your territory will do everything in their power to quickly get your trucking equipment in first class shape to handle your business. The coming months of September, October, November, December, January, February and March we believe will burden the Nation's transportation facilities to the limit.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT HAS CHANCE TO BE "HUB QUEEN"

'WISTFUL BEAUTY' PRAISED

Helen Petrilly of Notre Dame Entered in "Charming Girl" Tournament

Will a high school student be chosen "Queen of the Hub" in the Boston American's quest for the MOST CHARMING girl in Greater Boston?

The first high school girl to be entered in the great tournament is Helen M. Petrilly of No. 147 West Newton street, who is Summering at Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H. She is a second year student at Notre Dame Academy, Roxbury.

Miss Petrilly was nominated by I. H. Lamont of the same address. Of the young girl Mr. Lamont says, "Helen's charm and personality, combined with her wistful beauty are irresistible. She is considered the loveliest girl in this neighborhood."

Mr. Lamont believes Miss Petrilly is so charming that she will be declared the most fascinating girl entered in the tournament and that she will thereby win the free trip to Atlantic City with all expenses of self and chaperon paid for one week.

Miss Honora Dubelle of No. 210 Brighton avenue, Allston, twenty-two years old, was also nominated by Mrs. Charles Wade of No. 211 Brighton avenue.

GIRL OF IT MAY WIN.

It is expected that many more high school girls living in Metropolitan Boston will enter the tournament. Many artists are of the opinion that women are loveliest during the high school age, so it would not be surprising if some miss of sixteen or seventeen Summers should be selected "Queen of the Hub," and go to Atlantic City for a week filled to the brim with pleasure of all kinds.

The "Charming Girl" Editor of the Boston American desires to call special attention of readers to one feature of the tournament. Any reader may enter any girl between the ages of fourteen and twenty-five by filling out the coupon and sending a photograph of the young woman.

It is not necessary for the girl to send the coupon and photograph herself, although she may do so if she wishes. The Boston American wants every reader to actively participate in this quest for the most charming girl in this section. Surely everybody knows some girl he considers charming!

SEND IN PICTURES.

If you know a lovely girl, one who fascinates you every time you see or talk with her, send us her picture and you may be the means of giving her the best outing she will ever have. And what a trip! A full week at Atlantic City during the great Fall pageant which begins September 6 and continues three days.

She will have everything that money can purchase—finest suite at a leading waterfront hotel, best of food at the same hotel, bathing in the famous breakers, airplane flights, yacht rides, automobile rides, rolling chair rides along the famous board walk, dances, vaudeville shows and entertainments too numerous to record. The expenses of her mother, or other woman she may select as chaperon, will also be paid for one week. The trip would cost any girl hundreds of dollars if she planned it for her vacation.

HELP FIND CHARMER.

Who is the fascinating girl that will win this wonder trip? The Boston American doesn't know and, furthermore, it hasn't the slightest idea who she is. All it knows is that she lives somewhere in or near Boston and it is very anxious to discover her. It wants every reader to appoint itself a committee of one to help find her.

When the judges appointed determine which girl is the "Queen of the Hub" the Boston American is going to call her "Miss Boston" and send her to the Atlantic City pageant to represent the Athens of America in the national beauty tournament. She will compete with one girl from each of 75 leading cities of the United States and Canada for the honor of being chosen "Miss America."

The MOST CHARMING girl of the group will be picked for this honor by a committee of judges, which includes some of the best known artists and sculptors in the country. "Miss America" will be given the title of the loveliest young woman on the continent.

$5,000 GOLDEN MERMAID.

Other rewards may be in store for the "Queen of the Hub." She may win the $5,000 Golden Mermaid, a solid gold statue of a sea nymph reclining on a granite boulder, mounted on a bronze base. To win this she must be declared the loveliest young woman in the Bathing Revue, one of the features of the Atlantic City Pageant.

She may also be picked for a $10,000 job in the movies by one of the numerous managers attending the pageant in search of silver screen actresses. Many of the highest priced motion picture actresses of today were obscure young girls ten years ago. Who knows but what "Miss Boston" will leap to fame in the movies as the result of her trip to Atlantic City next month.

Hurry that entry. Don't wait until it is too late. Poor working girls will have an equal chance with wealthy young women. No favoritism will be shown in selecting "Miss Boston." She must be the MOST CHARMING of the entrants, that's all.

Girls may obtain one free photograph for this contest by arranging a sitting with any of the following studios: Wald, No. 168 Tremont street; Otto Sarony, No. 146 Tremont street; Ye Craftsman, No. 561 Boylston street; Rachrach, No. 647 Boylston street; Notman, No. 1,286 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge; Champlain, No. 161 Tremont street; Marlboro, No. 164 Tremont street, and Perham, No. 165 Tremont street.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

"THE GREAT ADVENTURE."

"THE GREAT ADVENTURE," starring Lionel Barrymore, playing at the Modern and Beacon theatres this week, is disappointing when one remembers the original story as written by Arnold Bennett. In book form it was called "Buried Alive." Lionel Barrymore, however, saves the situation throughout. This player is one of the most satisfying of the screen actors.

As nearly everyone knows, Farrl was a painter of distinction. He did not, in fact, realize just how distinguished he was until he attended his own funeral at Westminster Abbey. When his butler had died suddenly on the day of Farrl's return to England after an absence of ten years, he was automatically taken to be Farrl himself, and took up his valet's life where the latter had left off.

The production is only fair, with the exception of the acting. Barrymore leads off with a splendid characterization, while the others follow adequately.

"OTHER WOMEN'S CLOTHES"

THE companion picture on the bill is the Ballin picture. "Other Women's Clothes," in which Mabel Ballin stars under the direction of her husband, Hugo Ballin. The story is too trifling and ordinary to merit much attention, though the star is extremely attractive. The general direction is not up to the Ballin standard.

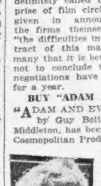
MERGER CALLED OFF.

FOR some weeks there have been persistent rumors of the merger of two of the most important of the cine firms, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and the First National Pictures, Inc. This move would have been a serious step for it would ally two strong companies, one a producing corporation and the other a distributing concern. It would serve, to a certain extent, to drive small companies to the wall unless they would make arrangements to distribute through their channels.

The merger, however, has been definitely called off, to the surprise of film circles. The reason given in announcements from the firms themselves says that "the difficulties involved in a contract of this magnitude are so many that it is better at this time not to conclude the deal." The negotiations have been going on for a year.

BUY "ADAM AND EVA."

"ADAM AND EVA," the comedy by Guy Bolton and George Middleton, has been bought by the Cosmopolitan Productions as a future vehicle for Marion Davies, to be made, doubtless, after she finishes "When Knighthood Was in Flower," the latter said to be the most ambitious and striking production the star has yet made.



Marion Davies.

"Adam and Eva" was one of the most successful comedies of two or three seasons ago, having had long runs in New York and on the road. The leading role, played here by Ruth Shepley, should serve to bring out Miss Davies' light comedy work, for she part is well suited to her.

HIERS TO MARRY

WALTER HIERS sprang a bombshell on the Famous Players-Lasky offices one day before yesterday when he suddenly appeared before them. He was, as far as anyone knew, out in Hollywood. Instead of that, he had gone to Syracuse, slipped a diamond ring on the third finger of Miss Adah McWilliams' left hand, and was making plans for a wedding in December. He is spending a few days in New York before leaving for work on the West coast next week.

Dark Harbor in Maine Fashion Centre of America, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

QUITE the most fashionable place of all to spend the Summer in is Isleborough, Dark Harbor, Maine. While the society folk who go there never go in for a strenuous season of balls and formal parties, still they make the most of every minute with informal affairs, and this season the swimming pool has come in for a large share of popularity.

This pool of dark, deep water is what gave this Summer resort its name of Dark Harbor, for it has a very small dammed outlet, which is only opened occasionally to let the sea rush in. The water, which on that coast is icy cold, is by this means warmed by the sun, and the younger folks spend many hours in it daily. Sailing is also a favorite sport there, and on Wednesday and Saturday evenings, the new Casino at Isleborough draws all to the dances.

Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, who never misses spending a portion of the Summer at this delightful spot, goes around praising it to everyone. It was she who interested Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes to establish the British embassy there for the Summer, and now they, too, have fallen victims to its charms. They have been much missed for the past few weeks, when they have been obliged to be in England, but they are expected back in a week or two.

Among other late arrivals at Isleborough are Eric W. Carr and the Honorable Mrs. Carr of London, who are also friends of Mrs. Gibson and her sister, Lady Astor.

If Isleborough is quite the most fashionable place on this side of the water, then certainly Deauville and Trouville are the most so on the other side. Many Americans have taken villas there for the season, among them being Mrs. Van Rensselaer Thayer and her daughter, whose villa is near the Prince and Princess Christopher of Greece, who are at the Hotel Royal with the sister of the Princess, Mrs. Henderson Green of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Claus Spreckles and their daughter Mrs. Spencer Eddy are at the Hotel Normandy. In fact the place is so popular and so crowded that the Prince of Wales, who wished to rent a villa there, hunted fruitlessly and had to put up in quarters at a hotel.

MRS. CHURCHILL SATTERLEE and her daughter, Miss Ethelred F. Satterlee, of No. 84 Fenway, are spending the Summer months at Ashland, N. H. Last Summer they were in the Berkshires, where they occupied "Syringa Cottage" at Lenox.

OF GREAT interest to folks on the North Shore, owing to numerous family connections, is the engagement of Miss Jane Norton Grew, daughter of the Edward W. Grews of Boston and Dover, to James Waterhouse Angell, son of Dr. and Mrs. James R. Angell of New Haven. Mr. Angell graduated from Harvard in 1918.

DR. WILLIAM ROSCOE THAYER and Mrs. Thayer are spending the Summer as usual with Mrs. Thayer's sister, Mrs. Robert deWolfe Sampson, in her charming stucco cottage on University Lane, Manchester Cove. Mrs. Sampson also has another dear little white cottage across the street and nearer the water, which is surrounded by a lovely old-fashioned garden.

Miss Margaret Thayer, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thayer, is spending the Summer at their Winter home, No. 8 Berkeley street, Cambridge, on account of her philanthropic interests at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

However, she comes down for week-ends with her family. Miss Thayer has always been a familiar figure on the shore, either driving or riding a spirited horse, or motoring.

A FLUTTER of excitement pervades the whole shore ever since the arrival on Tuesday of Miss Alisa Mellon with her brother, Paul Mellon, who have come to get "Avalon," the estate of the Frederick Ayers, ready for their father, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who is expected shortly.

Miss Mellon has always been called one of the most charming debutantes in Washington, where she was at the head of her father's large establishment since his appointment to the Cabinet. And naturally, society along the shore is very anxious to meet and entertain the young lady. It is also whispered that President and Mrs. Harding are coming to visit at "Avalon" some time this month, now that their trip to Alaska has been cancelled.

"Avalon" is a veritable palace, with huge suites of rooms. The flooring on the lower floor and the staircases is all in marble, and the walls are hung with rare tapestries. It is located in the most exclusive part of Prides Crossing, and overlooks the sea.

FLYERS BURNED TO DEATH IN MID-AIR

Naberville, Ill., Aug. 11.—Two aviators were burned to death when their plane caught fire in mid-air. The burning plane fell in the heart of the town, hundreds of citizens having gathered to watch the stunts of the fliers.

The aviators were identified as Edward Sohillo, head of the Sohillo Motor Sales Company of Chicago, and Leroy Keller of Naberville.

Hundreds of persons watched Keller's frantic struggles to prevent the plane from crashing into the cluster of houses below him. His efforts seemed to have been successful after a drop from a height of about 2,500 feet when the plane straightened out a few hundred feet above the housetops. A fain cheer rose from the spectators, which changed into a gasp as the wings of the plane were seen to crumple up and a moment later it nose-dived into the street.

Keller was instantly killed, but Schillo, who was in the rear seat, was seen trying to free himself from the strap binding him into the plane. Before rescuers could reach him, however, the gasoline tank caught fire and the wreckage was covered by a sdden rush of flame.

FOSS SUED FOR AID IN FORMING CORPORATION

Nathaniel F. Jones of Boston has entered suit in the Suffolk Superior Court against former Governor Eugene N. Foss to recover $2,250 which he claims is due for services rendered.

My Jones says he was employed by Mr. Foss in connection with his planning and organization of a company for the purpose of disposing of certain real estate. The corporation was known as the Massachusetts Bond & Mortgage Company, and Mr. Jones says that Mr. Foss agreed to pay him a fair compensation for his services and expenses.

Mr. Jones alleges that from November 11, 1921, to May 1, 1922, he was engaged in the enterprise. The Massachusetts Trust Company, in which Mr. Foss is supposed to have funds, is trusteel to the amount of $6,000.

FRENCH STEAMERS COLLIDE IN FOG

Three Rivers, Que., Aug. 11.—The French freight steamer Indochine collided with the cargo steamer M. Samatia in a heavy fog today. No lives were lost. Both vessels grounded on sand bars, and tugs were sent to their assistance. The prow of the Indochine ripped a large hole in the Samatia amidships, above the water-line. The Indochine was not damaged.

Many Issues Set New Highs in Strong New York Market; Rails Active and Firm

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

"Keep your eye on your goal!"

Isn't that the temper of the much loudly-trumpeted advice?

I suppose I've sometimes been guilty of proclaiming the same sentiment.

And yet—

Do we stop often enough to ask ourselves whither we are hurrying and—quite as important—to ponder what we are likely to experience when we get there?

* * *

Is there not danger of glorifying the "getting there" overmuch; so much, indeed, that we may lose a lot there is worthwhile during the journey and become callous, indifferent, selfish, even cruel?

I asked these questions some time ago, and here are the thoughts that came to mind; check them up with your own:

Looking around, it would seem as if some men have their eyes so intent upon a goal that they regard it as the be-all and end-all of life and neglect to live rational, kindly lives while they press toward it. Some men—many men—have neglected wife, family, friends, everybody and everything in their ambition to attain a certain seat, only to find, when they reached it, that they had paid too heavy a price, that in their flight and struggle and turmoil to get there they had lost all capacity for enjoying it when they finally had it within their grasp.

They told themselves they would take time to live and to avail themselves of life's enjoyments once they had attained their worldly ambitions—only to find, too late, that they had misspent their time, that they had sold their finer things of life for a mess of pottage. In many cases both has cut off such men while still in their pursuit of wealth.

The attainment of the goal is not everything. It is of less importance than how we conduct ourselves and deport ourselves while on the journey. If we have to trample and crush others, if we have to give up thoughtfulness and kindness and consideration for those weaker than ourselves, if we have to neglect our family and friends, if we have to withdraw all our moral fences before instituting the winning of our goal is not worth the price paid and the sacrifice made. It is of more moment to live worthily and unselfishly as we go along from day to day.

Riches as riches are and cannot justify condemnable means.

Replies to Investors

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Address your questions, with stamped and self-addressed envelope, to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

To T. D. T., Scituate:

Mathieson Alkali earned in the quarter to June 30 net profits of slightly over $225,000. The preferred dividend calls for but $210,000 annually, so that in the second three months the company earned at an annual rate of practically $15 on 13 per cent. on its $5,585,700 common, par $50.

Earnings for the first quarter of the year available for dividends were $151,667. Earnings for the month of June alone were equal to a rate of 48 per share on the common.

Mathieson Alkali recently resumed dividends on its 7 per cent. preferred, but still has one year's accruals to liquidate.

To U. H., Framingham:

For quarter ended June 30, 1922, Stewart-Warner Speedometer reports profit before taxes $1,605,287, the largest in its history against $601,945 in second quarter of 1921. For first half of 1922 profits totaled $2,125,256, against $602,872 in the same 1921 period.

To I. I., Manchester, N. H.:

Boston & Maine stockholders unanimously voted in favor of the merger with the Rutland, at Bonds Hotel, Albany, on July 26. Boston & Maine owns majority of the stock. They also voted to merge the Sullivan County Railroad, Vermont Valley Railroad, Barre & Chelsea Railroad and the Montpelier & Wells River, all in Vermont.

RADIATOR REAL MYSTERY AS CLIMBER

Many issues set new highs in a strong New ork market in which rails were both active and firm. Renewal doorway was at 4% per cent. the highest renewal in several days, but call money later dropped to 3½.

American Radiator established a record, up 8 at 131. Wall Street is wondering why Radiator is showing its heel to the rest of the market in so sustained a spurt as any stock has had in a long time. Radiator has scored a gain of around 20 points in the last few weeks.

There is a possibility Radiator directors are about to declare an extra dividend, as they have done in the past. Selling at 114, and paying only $4 a year in dividends, Radiator is indeed a mystery. More than this, it is a $15 par value stock.

Keystone Tire made a new low, off ¾ at 8¼.

Highs for 1922 wage set by: American Brake Shoe, up 4, at 73½; Brooklyn Edison, ¾, at 117¾; Piere Marquette, ¾, at 99½; St. Louis & San Francisco, 1¾ at 35½; Columbia Gas, 2 at 96; International Paper, 1¾ at 67; Sears Roebuck, 2¾ at 89¾; Industrial Alcohol, 2¾ at 67½; Adams Express, 3¾ at 77¾; Advance Rumely, 1¾ at 20¾; and the preferred, 1¾ at 42; Allied Chemical, 1¾ at 52; Allis Chalmers, 1¾ at 32; Wilson Bros., pfd., 3 at 90; and Montgomery Ward, 1¾ at 25¾.

Wabash preferred and St. Louis & San Francisco touched their previous highs for the year.

Doheny oils were strongest. Mexican Pet was up 4¾ at 175¾ and Pan-American 1¾ at 75¾. Coeden gained 1¾ at 13¾.

Studebaker and Chandler were active. Studebaker was off 1¾ at 122, then recovered. Chandler sagged ¾ at 27¾, then sold at 28. Marion preferred lifted 1¾ at 45½.

General Electric added a point at 177 and Westinghouse 3¾ at 52¾.

U. S. Steel was strong and fractionally higher. Republic at 72 and Lackawanna at 77 both gained a point.

Rubber Issues Are Weak in Bond Mart

Continued strength of railroad bonds featured trading on the New York bond market. Toledo, St. Louis and Western 4s led the list with a gain of one point, substantial advances being registered by Seaboard 4s, Atchison and Adjustments 4s, and Atchinson general 4s.

Weakness of rubber issues was the only spoiling feature element in industrial transactions. Losses of substantial fractions took place in Kelly Springfield 1st 7s, Rubber 5s and Goodyear 8s of 1931.

Liberty issues were slightly higher and foreign government securities steady.

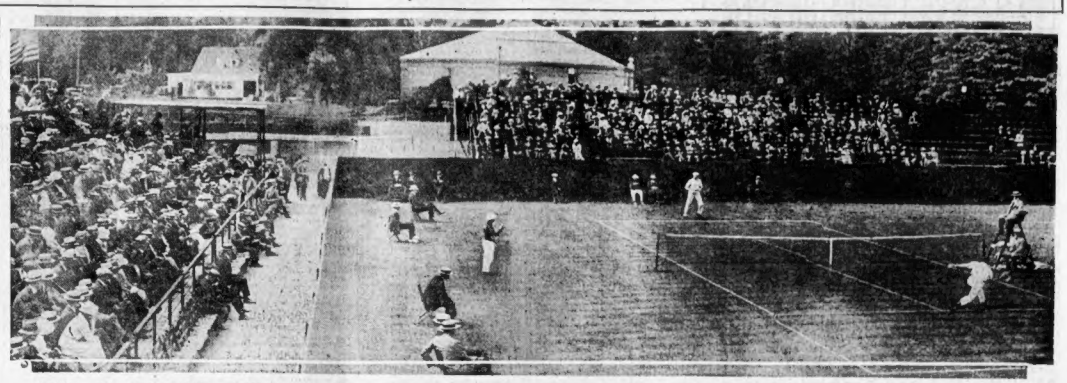
DARING AVIATORS READY FOR 5,800 MILE FLIGHT TO BRAZIL

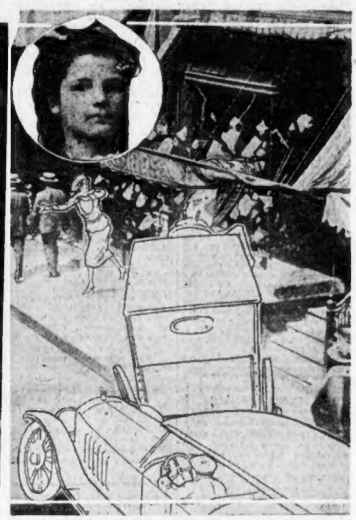
HERE'S ANOTHER CLOSE-UP OF MARION Davies, the Famous Film Star, in One of Her Latest Fashion Creations. It is a green taffeta evening gown with hoop skirt effect and trimmed with silver lace. It is a strictly American design and outrivals anything imported from the European style centres. (Photo by International News Reel.)



SCENE ON LONGWOOD TENNIS COURTS. Chestnut Hill, Yesterday, as Gerald Patterson, Captain of the Australian Team, Defeated His Rival, Andre Gobert of France, in the Semi-Finals of the Davis Cup Tennis Matches. Patterson's garrison finish, in which he pulled up from behind and wrested victory from the speedy Frenchman, thoroughly thrilled the big crowd that followed the day's tourney. In the photo Gobert is the player nearest the fence and Patterson the man returning the ball.

MOST EXPENSIVE CUFF LINKS IN THE WORLD! Just a pair of ordinary bones, but they cost their owner, a former New York gambler, $500,000. He threw it away chasing shoes for the baby. Then he picked 'em up, took 'em to the jeweler and now their galloping days are done. They'll never roll again—not in your shirt sleeves! (Photo by Underwood and Underwood.)

SHE STILL LOVES THE MAN FOR WHOM SHE Went to Jail! Mrs. Ethel Stewart, wife of the Rev. Donald Stewart, "marrying parson," now hunted as a bigamist. She is in Charles street jail, accused of conspiring with her husband in fleecing victims. "Though I know he has done wrong—though I am here because of his acts—I love him still," she sobs in her cell. "I will wait for him forever once I am out of this." She is shown with Inspectors Connolly and Donovan of police headquarters.

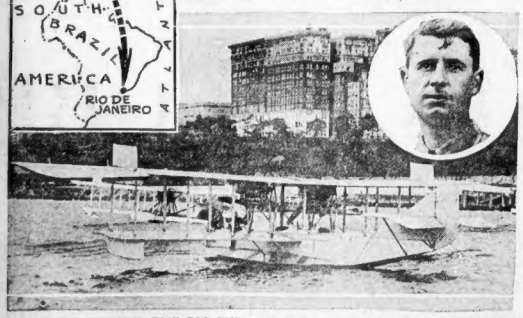


'N Y'D ORTA HEARD WHAT THE PARROT SAID! Oh, Boy! Photo diagram shows how a New Hampshire autoist drove his car through the window of an animal and bird store at No. 69 Bromfield street. Monkeys, squirrels, canary birds, white mice, gold fish an' everything—gee whata riot! To cap it all the crash caused a towel team to run away, and a lotta folks had a close rub. Inset is Miss Camela Jacobs, No. 9 Oliver street, hurt by flying glass. She was treated at the Relief Hospital.

AN IDEAL SPOT—YES, FOR MOSQUITOES! NO, dear reader, this is not a scene from the everglades of Florida. It's just a swamp scene from University Park, Cambridge. Mosquitoes breed here by the umpty-ump millions. Then they fly out to Brookline and over to Somerville and spoil your sleep. The Boston American is waging war against these pests and such breeding places as this. Inset is little Muriel Davies, of Cambridge. Note the 'skeeter bites on her face; then join the fight to kill the pests!

AHOY! Here's Another Winning Sea Beauty. She's Miss Marion M. McLuvley, of No. 34 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and she's all of that—eh!

HERE'S FIDO ALL DRESSED UP IN HIS BRAND New Muzzle! Doesn't he look cute? Just like an umpire or something. Well, he's safer, at that. Dog days are here again and Mayor Curley isn't taking any chances. Too much danger to the children and grownups, too. So he's ordered all dogs in the city muzzled for ninety days. This does not include hot dogs or those on your feet.



ALL READY FOR THE BIG HOP! HERE'S NAVY LIEUTENANT WALTER Hinton, intrepid trans-Atlantic flyer, and the big machine in which he and six other daring aviators will start tomorrow on a flying trip from New York to Rio Janeiro, Brazil, a distance of 5,500 miles. The plane is equipped with special radio instruments with which the flyers expect to keep in touch with terra firma while in the air. The map shows course of the proposed flight, via the West Indies. Inset is Lieut. Hinton. (Photo by International News Reel.)

WHAT D'YER MAKE OUT OF THIS, WATSON? Here's Another Freak of Nature Barnum Overlooked! It's a piece of cypress board from a Missouri forest bearing a weird nature "painting" of a woodland scene. Experts of the United States Forestry Department are unable to explain the mystery. Can you? Put on your thinkin' cap and try. It's a good way to spend a wild night. MEET THE NEW DEP- uty Marshal! James Cummings, popular Boston man who was yesterday appointed to the office by the Federal Court. He assumed his new duties at once. Here's wishing him luck!

HE WANTS TO FACE THE MUSIC! HERE'S Ernest Lenti, conscience-smitten thief, whom police say has confessed to stealing $450 from a local song shop. Inspectors arrested him in Los Angeles while out there to bring back two other prisoners. Lenti surrendered himself and personally informed the officers he was anxious to return East. He was accommodated when telegrams confirmed his story. The big fellow leading Ernest into durance vile is Inspector William Connolly.

DARTMOUTH MAY GET HARRIS ON STAFF

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Announcement from Texas that Roger Harris will return to Dartmouth next month will quiet a lot of Dartmouth worries. But as yet such announcement has not appeared.

Jim Robertson

With Jim Robertson graduated and now a member of the Hanover coaching forces, and with the Harvard-Dartmouth game scheduled for October, assurance that the former Dartmouth Freshman football captain and varsity track star will resume his college work means much to the Green.

Robertson will be readily recalled as the Dartmouth grid captain of last year and the year before, who was master in every department of football play—a wonderful offensive and defensive backfield man; a punter and dropkicker of remarkable ability; a forward passer whose accuracy and distance was phenomenal, and a player who could step into a line position and hold his own with the best of them.

It was his kicking, forward-passing, rushing and defensive ability that made his place such a prominent one on the Dartmouth teams of recent years, and it is the loss of his assets that constituted the sorriest blow dealt to the Green at the graduation exercises last June.

But if Roger Harris returns to Hanover next month the sighing will not be so loud.

Was Captain of the Green Freshmen Two Years Ago

Roger captained the Green yearling eleven two seasons ago and as the leader of that team disclosed abilities very similar to those possessed by Jim Robertson. He was a bear at carrying the ball and in defensive play; his punting was most impressive and he could just naturally toss the old pigskin wherever he wanted it to go.

Roger did an excellent job as a member of the freshman track team that year, for he could sprint, hurdle, broad jump and high jump, and he was doing those things for Harry Hillman's varsity track array last Winter, when he was summoned to his home in Texas to aid his father in business.

When Roger left he said he expected to arrange for his return to Hanover this Fall, and if he does return to assume Jim Robertson's old place in the Green backfield, all Dartmouth will offer a prayer of thanksgiving.

Syracuse Squad Will "Camp Out" Next Month

Coach "Chick" Meehan of Syracuse will spring something novel in football training three weeks hence when he loads his varsity grid squad and a dozen wall tents aboard a train at Syracuse and heads for Boyden Bay, on the shore of Oneida Lake, New York.

Eighteen days in the woods, sleeping under canvas at night, and engaging in preliminary stunts on an improvised football field during the afternoons, is the program laid out by the Orange mentor and he expects as the result to start his team playing winning football from the opening game to the close of the season.

"Cutie" Spears Has Many Veterans

If an amplitude of veteran material forecasts a successful football season, "Cutie" Spears, former Dartmouth coach, and now serving in that capacity at West Virginia, should lick the world this Fall, for thirty-five of the forty-two members of last season's varsity array are to report to Coach Spears next month. Bob Kay and Joe Harrick are the only regulars lost by graduation.

"Cutie," by the way, is now Dr. Clarence W. Spears, he having completed his course in medicine and knocked State board examinations for a row of goals.

PLAN WELCOME FOR SPANISH NET TEAM

New York, Aug. 11.—When the Spanish Davis Cup team lands today from the Mauretania it will be met by some of the most prominent Spanish residents of this city. These plan an enthusiastic welcome for the first tennis team from Spain that has ever visited the United States. Jose Camprubi, of "La Prensa," the Spanish newspaper, has taken the initiative in arranging the details of the reception.

BOSTON TROTTER NORWICH WINNER

Norwich, Ct., Aug. 11.—The card offered for its second day of light harness racing at the fair grounds under the "Short Ship" banner embraces the 2:14 trot, the 2:17 pace and the Stake trot for three-year-olds.

Yesterday's events were decidedly interesting, although the fields were small. The Boston trotter Native Judge delivered in the 2:17 trot, June Willis won the 2:20 pace, while the Hartford trotter, Wesley R. proved much the best in the 2:19 trot.

Roxbury Teams Battle

Roxbury is considerably interested in the clash between the J. J. Mulvey B. C. and the O'Connor A. Stars, formerly Manning, Maxwell & Moore B. B. C., which will take place at the J. J. Connelly playground tomorrow. The Mulvey team is made up of members of the various Boston high school ball teams, Winn, Moriarty, Mulvey and Maloney, Commerce; Donnelly and Crisp, Mechanic Arts; Garrity, B. C. H.; also Gibbs, Holy Cross, and Sullivan, Fiton Seminary. They are without a game for Sunday and any amateur team can reach them by calling James Garrity, Roxbury 6349-J.

GRID PROSPECT ALSO A STAR IN STUDIES

Heinie Dunker, former Exeter football star and Harvard freshman guard, is the big prospect for the coming football battles in the Fall. Heinie is a native of Davenport, Ia. In addition to his gridiron activities he was captain and shot putter of the freshman tracksters.

Also he hurtled his 185 pounds, which is attached to a six-foot frame, around the 200-yard distance in near record time.

The most surprising feat that this eighteen-year-old wearer of the Crimson has accomplished, however, is that of gathering in six A's as a result of his freshman study, despite the fact that a great deal of his time was devoted to athletics.

This Summer the Western athletic and intellectual prodigy is heaving bricks and pickaxes on a highway construction gang as a means of better developing his natural ability to play a tackle position on the Harvard varsity football team.

ROCKINGHAM PARK MAY START UP SOON

Lawrence, Aug. 11.—After many years of idleness the Rockingham Park race track will soon open again. Negotiations are now pending for the lease or purchase of the Salem, N. H., track which served as a training camp for young men during the early days of the war, for horse and auto racing. A large force of men will put the race track in shape for the first races scheduled for Labor Day.

HOLD TOM O'ROURKE FOR PUNCHING SCRIBE

New York, Aug. 11.—Thomas F. O'Rourke, deputy commissioner of the New York State Athletic Commission, was held in $1,000 bail for trial in special sessions following examination yesterday before Magistrate Ellperin in Flatbush court on a charge of assaulting James E. Forbes, a Brooklyn newspaper sporting writer.

FRENCH EVEN FAVORITES WITH AUSTRALIANS IN TENNIS PLAY

DOUBLES GET UNDER WAY AT LONGWOOD

By FRED C. LANE.

The heavy odds on the Australian tennis team to win from the French team in the semi-final rounds of the Davis Cup match at Longwood today dropped to even money as a result of the fine showing made by the French team in yesterday's singles matches.

The second day of play at the famous courts is featured with a doubles match between the invading foes. Gerald Patterson will team with Pat O'Hara Wood as Australian representatives and Andre Gobert will play with Henri Cochet for France.

Henri Cochet's brilliant tennis, which resulted in his winning over Pat O'Hara Wood of the Australian team, saved the day for France when Andre Gobert, his teammate, went down to defeat before Gerald Patterson, captain of the Australian team, in the first match of the semi-finals for the Davis Cup, staged at the Chestnut Hill courts of the Longwood Cricket Club. The score of the match was 6—4, 3—6, 6—0, 7—9, 6—4.

The youngster, who carries on his broad shoulders the championship of France, scored an unexpected win over his much older and more experienced opponent.

Wood, who substituted for James O. Anderson when the latter was forced to withdraw because of a severe attack of bronchitis, played the game of his career, but to no avail. He was outwitted by the best that Francs has offered in years in the most interesting tennis engagement staged on the new courts.

From the play of Cochet, it seemed that even had Anderson been in the fray the result would have been the same, so well did the youngest member of the challenging band perform.

Wood, the more experienced of the two, shared of the world's championship in mixed doubles with Mlle. Lenglen, put up a gallant fight, but was outplayed by the flying Frenchman.

Cochet opened up the match by winning four games in succession in the first set, and many were of the opinion that the Australian was taking his opponent easy. This opinion was strengthened when Wood came back and won the next four in a row.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 11—J. S. Cosden tonight paid $19,000 for a yearling colt by Trap Rock-Federal Girl from the Pagebrook Virginia stud consignment of Captain P. M. Walker. Try 'Rocking Chair' Seats for Crew at Harvard

Harvard is trying out a new wrinkle in rowing by equipping a shell with "rocking chair" seats in place of the usual slides. The seats are pivoted to the stays at the bottom of the boat, and rock back and forth much as grandmother's rocker used to do. Smith College girls are credited with the invention of these seats. It is claimed that they allow the oarsmen a greater body swing but less leg drive, and therefore put greater strain on the torso while they relieve the muscles of the legs.

CITY DISTRICT SWIM MEETS SATURDAY

The city of Boston Park Department will hold the annual district swimming meets tomorrow afternoon. These meets have aroused considerable interest in the different localities.

James L. Walsh, in charge of the entries, says that to date more than three hundred entries have been received to take part in the different events.

For the youngsters in the Dorchester district, two meets will be held, one in Old Dorchester at the Freeport street baths, and the other in New Dorchester at Savin Hill Beach.

South Boston will have the events at "L" street baths. The other meets will be held at North End Park for the youths of the North and West Ends, at Dewey beach for Charlestown, and at World War Memorial Park beach for East Boston.

The winners will be awarded certificates, and on Sunday, at the Head House, City Point, South Boston, the final events will be contested for by these same youngsters. The prizes in the finals will be for firsts, seconds and thirds. The winners will receive gold medals, seconds will get silver, and thirds will get bronze medals.

This meet will also be divided into two classes, junior and senior, for boys and girls up to eighteen years of age.

The events will be:

Junior diving, 50-yard dash and 25-yard race for beginners.

Senior 50-yard swim, back-stroke and diving contest.

Any youngster wishing to compete can do so by giving his or her entry to any of the playground, beach or section instructors or mailing the name, address, age and district in which he or she lives to James L. Walsh, care of Boston Park Department, No. 33 Beacon street.

NEWSBOY CHAMP BOXCAR KING, BACK IN HUB

"One-Eyed Connelly," famous box car tourist and champion gate crasher, blew into town with his six trunks and golf sticks. The most traveled newsboy in the world is going back to Lowell after sixteen years' absence from the home village.

Connelly, who has been resting up on the Pacific Coast, decided that a breath of east wind was what he needed to sharpen up his nerve "to beat the gate" at Michigan City when Jack Dempsey meets Bill Brennan on Labor Day.

Connelly rode the cushions over from Saratoga after putting over four 15-to-1 shots and on the strength of his luck decided to visit the chief of police of that old mill town who has missed him since he started off some years ago.

"Mortgage the house, bet your shirt and collar, beg, borrow or if necessary steal and bet it all that Jack Dempsey will knock out Harry Wills in one round," says Connelly.

"I have witnessed every fight that the champion has taken part in and have yet to pay the price. Jack is a fighter from head to toe and will make quick work of the big negro."

Connelly has been a knight of the road for twenty-three years. He has crossed the continent eighteen times—been to Europe eight times, visited Australia four times and has made Cuba a jumping off spot on six occasions.

Connelly intends to visit a sister now living in Revere before he hits the road again.

TAIL-END SOX MEET SENATORS TODAY

Boston fans, if they were inclined that way, had a chance today to look over the latest edition of the Red Sox. The Fenway Flock opened a long home engagement with the Senators, and it was the first appearance here of the most recently famed Yankees.

Johnny Mitchell, shortstop; Chick Fewster, third baseman, and Elmer Miller, outfielder, are the new wearers of Sox spangles, and the first two are playing regularly. According to Manager Duffy, both are mighty good ball players, likely to surprise the Boston populace.

The teams have a double-header billed tomorrow and a single game this afternoon. After the Senators go away from here the Western clubs make their third and final invasion.

The recent road trip of the Sox was the most disastrous on record, the team winning but three games out of seventeen played. They dropped a single pastime to the Yanks on the way West, lost three out of four in Chicago, four in a row at St. Louis, three out of four in Cleveland and Detroit, which isn't likely to cause any broken arms in the ticket takers' league.

MARINE CHAMP IS READY TO FIGHT

Al Hagan, champion lightweight of the Marine Corps, is ready to fight. All of which is a very normal condition for a "Devil Dog."

Al Hagen

Hagan was recently discharged from the service and has pitched his camp right here in Boston. He has gazed upon some of our local lightweights in action and says they would be easy for him. All of which may be right.

Hagan has engaged in seventeen bouts and has won most of them by knockouts.

SHEVLIN FIGHTS ONE OF HIS MOST SENSATIONAL BATTLES

BEATS GEORGE WARD BY BODY PUNCHING

By JACK CONWAY.

Eddie Shevlin, fighting, one of the most sensational battles of his brilliant ring career defeated George Ward in their return bout at Dorchester Club show at the Boston Arena Tuesday night. Ward, who was considered by many fo[llowers] to be a set-up for Shevlin, was forced to lose by most of the latter's punches.

The writer named Shevlin to win on Monday and [Tuesday], but later, [mailed] to Ward Ward [figured] that Shevlin could [not] do any [thing] the week. Despite the [fact] that [he] had [not] [done] a [bout] [in] [the] game since last [January] [when] [he] [fought] and [gave] one of the best exhibitions of fighting that we have witnessed in a long, long time. He made the fans forget all about the dismal battle between Maione and Walker recently staged at the Arena.

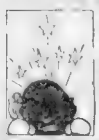
It was another case of a veteran ring master [out]fighting a youthful [contender] for championship [honors]. Shevlin [proved] that [he] [can] [are] the [de]cided [fa]vorite [in] the [ring] [any] [time].

Ward [possesses] [all] [about] [as] [much] [ring] [generalship] [as] [a] [pet] [rabbit]. [He] [seems] [to] [have] [no] [idea] [of] [how] [to] [fight] [a] [boxer]. [He] [stands] [right] [in] [front] [of] [his] [opponent] [and] [swings] [at] [him]. [He] [takes] [a] [lot] [of] [punishment] [and] [never] [seems] [to] [mind] [it] [at] [all]. [He] [is] [game] [to] [the] [core] [and] [has] [the] [ability] [to] [take] [it] [on] [the] [chin] [and] [come] [back] [for] [more]. [He] [is] [a] [willing] [target] [for] [any] [boxer] [who] [wants] [to] [practice] [his] [punches] [on] [a] [moving] [object].

Shevlin, on the other hand, is a clever boxer and a hard hitter. He has a style of his own and is a hard man to solve. He is a clever boxer and a hard hitter. He has a style of his own and is a hard man to solve. He is a clever boxer and a hard hitter. He has a style of his own and is a hard man to solve.

Ward was [knocked] out in the [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night]. [Ward] [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

Ward was [knocked] out in the last round of his bout with Shevlin in a similar manner to that in which he was defeated by Eddie Shevlin at the Boston Arena last night. Ward was knocked out in the last round of his bout with Shevlin in a similar manner to that in which he was defeated by Eddie Shevlin at the Boston Arena last night.



Shevlin Weakened Foe by Punches to Body

[Shevlin] [was] [a] [heavy] [body] [puncher] [and] [Ward] [knew] [little] [about] [how] [to] [defend] [himself] [against] [such] [a] [style] [of] [attack]. [Ward] [was] [not] [fast] [and] [was] [easily] [hit] [by] [Shevlin] [with] [left] [and] [right] [hooks] [to] [the] [body]. [Shevlin] [was] [also] [a] [clever] [boxer] [and] [was] [able] [to] [avoid] [most] [of] [Ward's] [punches]. [Ward] [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

Ward Tried to Box, but Shevlin Wouldn't Let Him

[Ward] [tried] [to] [do] [some] [long] [range] [boxing] [in] [the] [first] [few] [rounds] [but] [Shevlin] [would] [not] [permit] [him] [to] [carry] [on] [any] [such] [tactics]. [Ward] [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

Billy Hendrum, Shevlin's pilot, told this writer a week ago that if Ward was to beat Ward was by an attack to the body. Shevlin adopted the Henderson method of warfare.

The fourth and fifth frames were a slaughter, Shevlin punished Ward in the most brutal manner to the body. Ward [could] [not] [stand] [the] [punishment] [and] [was] [forced] [to] [take] [the] [count] [of] [nine] [in] [the] [fifth] [round]. [Ward] [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

Ward [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

Because he was battling against [Shevlin], Ward began a desperate [rally] [in] [the] [fifth] [session]. The man [was] [out] [of] [condition] [and] [could] [not] [stand] [the] [pace] [that] [Shevlin] [was] [setting]. [Ward] [was] [knocked] [out] [in] [the] [last] [round] [of] [his] [bout] [with] [Shevlin] [in] [a] [similar] [manner] [to] [that] [in] [which] [he] [was] [defeated] [by] [Eddie] [Shevlin] [at] [the] [Boston] [Arena] [last] [night].

If Ward could have kept up his [pace], he would have won the decision. But Shevlin was too much for him in the last two frames. Eddie discarded ring science in these chapters and fought like one of the warriors of old. The result was that he smashed his way to [a] [victory].

Freddy Williams resumed [his] [ring] [career] [in] [local] [rings] [once] [more] [and] [defeated] [Bert] [Jones] [in] [the] [semi-final] [of] [ten] [rounds].

Young Corbett scored his third straight win over Billy Shiba, while Johnny Murphy stopped Joe Bearse in seven frames.

Pirates Set Dizzy Pace in Dash for Pennant

The [reinvented], rip-roaring Pirates closed a highly successful Eastern invasion by walloping the Phillies to the extent of 14 to 4 for their eleventh straight victory. It was their thirteenth conquest of the Phils, who have yet to win from the Smoky City club. The "dangerous contenders" won 13 out of 14 games on this trip and have taken 22 of the last 30 games played. Some speed.

ONLY TWILIGHT GAME IS AT DORCHESTER

Dorchester folks will witness the only Twilight League game on the [lo]cal [di]amond [on] [Wednesday] evening at Ronan Park, when the Ar[t]crews A. A. meets the Dorchester Baseball Club.

The game originally scheduled for [Mon]day, was called off on account of heavy showers. The contest will bring together two of the best teams in the league and with it a doubt there should be some plenty [of] [action].

Manager John Collins of the Saints will more than likely send Guy Langstroth to the mound, and Ala Hart, veteran southpaw, will oppose the Forest Hills team.

RESUME WRESTLING EARLY NEXT MONTH

The management of the Howard, which conducted the wrestling events at the Grand Opera House and the Boston Arena last season, will resume again early in September and special cards with top wrestlers will be put forth every week.

It is the intention of the management to sign up George Kotsonoras, the Greek who is considered one of the best men on the mat.

CHAMPION TO TRAIN FOR THREE WEEKS

By RINGSIDE.

Jack Dempsey will defend his title as world's heavyweight champion against Bill Brennan at Michigan City, Indiana on Labor Day. There will not be any interference with the match from the authorities.

The Boston American today received a wire from Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, which contained the above information.

Floyd Fitzsimmons will promote the Dempsey-Brennan affair. He is known as the Tex Rickard of the Middle West and was the man who put over the Leonard-Ramsay, Leonard-Eyer Hammer, Dempsey-Misaey and other big battles.

The American Legion will receive part of the profits of the Dempsey-Brennan affair. This will mean that there will not be any attempt to dispute Dempsey.

The champion is now roughing it along the Canadian border. He will arrive in Boston late tomorrow afternoon ready to show at the Faneuil Club's big event at Braves Field in the evening.

Dempsey will box four rounds with Jim Darcy of Portland, Oregon. Darcy is a big, powerful fellow and is expected to make things interesting for the title holder.

"Tiger Jack" is billed to leave for Michigan City at 11 p. m. Saturday night. Therefore the Faneuil Club will start its show promptly at 8 o'clock. If necessary, Dempsey will give his exhibition prior to the ten-round match between George Robinson and Georges Al Gillan.

Dempsey will have about three weeks to get into condition for Brennan which is all the time the champion needs. Jack has kept himself physically fit by engaging in boxing exhibitions and merely has to harden his muscles and increase his wind a little bit.

It is expected that there will be several thousand wagered at Braves Field tomorrow night. The ladies are particularly anxious to see the champion box.

NATE SIEGEL WILL FIGHT BILLY WELLS

Bermondsey Billy Wells has finally found a man daring enough to fight him. The English champion will battle Nate Siegel Monday night in Pittsburgh. Charley Harvey, his manager, is anxious to get Wells a match with Jack Britton for the world's welterweight crown and does not want any too much dough for his share either.

This Day in History—August 11, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the death, in 1890, of Cardinal Newman, the great English prelate, whose defection from the Anglican to the Roman Church caused so tremendous a sensation during his earlier years.

Desert Love

By Joan Conquest

She trusted herself with a Sheik in the lonely desert—

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England.

"If You Come, Be at the Gate of Yonder Pink House at Nine Tonight."

FOR one moment there was dead silence between Jill and the Arab Sheik, the strings of whose lives Fate was inextricably mixing in her fingers, palsied by age, and fretted by the constant tugging and straining of those other threads which, in moments of senile anger or childishness, she gets into such hopeless tangles.

Then as the shriek of an engine whose shrill [illegible] distance the mind-strike brought sinking to that deep note which no other nation attains, resembling in no way the Russian bass, and which in the Air Upon rare occasions alone betrays some emotional upheaval.

"Lisen, sen-o-ra of the West who even at this moment stands in my shadow, beseech that faint engine wherein you be panting of the beast see the train comes to a stand. You must make your choice. A few moments now I saw you cross a silver coin and decide quickly that which had been decided already for you since the beginning of all time.

Landru—His Secret Love Affairs

First Authentic Story of French Bluebeard, Who Won 283 Women, Written By William Le Queux

AUTUMN had passed to Spring, and Landru was already corresponding regularly with eight other women. Truly, he was a Great Lover, deserving to go down in history, as he will, for his catholic tastes in his sentimental amours.

One bright evening in May, 1917—he was always very chary of going abroad by daylight—Landru was out for any adventure with a woman of any class or age. He was about to enter a tramcar when his quick eye espied a good-looking young girl get in; and he followed her. She was a shop-assistant out upon holiday, and her name was Fernande Segret.

Here let her tell her own story, because she is the sole surviving fiancee of the Man of Mystery. It seems that she possessed a strong fascination for him, for even while they lived at his flat and they were perfectly happy, he took the lives of other women; yet he was faithful to her always. To others, never.

Mademoiselle Segret's statement which is contained in the great dossier which was produced at the Assize Court, Versailles, I have examined, and from it I have taken notes. It relates how she, with a girl friend, went out shopping and saw in the tramcar a gentleman of about forty-seven.

"He was of very intelligent and correct appearance, and well groomed," she says. "He looked fixedly at me, at the same time stroking his long, dark beard. He seemed to scrutinize me with audacity and with strange hypnotic eyes. I know that I was compelled to blush. When we alighted, the gentleman followed us and spoke to me. I said nothing, but hurried on to the shop where we were going. He, however, succeeded in getting me aside and in a most polite and gentlemanly tone—for we had refused to allow him to walk with us—he said: 'I am, alas! all alone in the world, Mademoiselle, and the affection of a friend is necessary to my life. I shall not leave you unless you promise to meet me tomorrow morning at ten o'clock at the Place de l'Etoile—at the corner of the Avenue Wagram.'"

Mademoiselle Segret went on to relate to me that she was entirely taken aback by the polite and elegant stranger, and half conscious-ly promised to meet him. Then upon his shook her hand warmly, raised his hat, and disappeared.

And so it followed that meeting is one of the strangest and most remarkable dramas ever enacted in modern life. I will describe it in the next chapter.

Landru had apparently fallen completely in love with Mademoiselle Fernande Segret, as is shown by his subsequent actions.

Towards her he assumed not the mock-fanatic attitude he had exhibited towards other women, but a genuine affection, curious indeed in such a monster, for while he was assiduously courting her, he was still corresponding with and meeting other women, posing under various names, and eventually swindling them.

His was amazingly daring. No longer did he head the constant warnings of the early old Callard. On the contrary, he went about Paris quite openly, without even cropping his flowing Assyrian beard, in which he took such pride, and which was so often clipped and trimmed by a barber in the Boulevard Rouchechouart.

As "Lucien Guillet," he told a purely fictitious and romantic story to Mademoiselle Fernande. He told her that he came from the town of Rocroi, where his father had been an engineer, and that on his death he had succeeded to the business; that he had also a garage outside Paris, and that he possessed a charming little villa at Gambais.

Next day, on the girl coming out of the furrier's shop where she was employed, she found the elegant Monsieur Guillet awaiting her.

"My darling," he whispered when they met. "You cannot believe what joy I experience when I find myself with you again. It is the only moment of my day—the moment I have awaited impatiently in order to meet you and grasp your dear little hand. I count the hours till I see you again."

By such well-spoken phrases Landru ingratiated himself with the pretty fair-haired girl, who told me her strange and sensational story.

"Soon after our first meeting," she said as we sat together, "I turned the conversation upon the sentimental side of my lover's life, when Lucien declared to me that his business wholly absorbed him, and that the opposite sex had never entered his life. He answered me that no woman had ever attracted him except—myself!"

Such was the amazing assurance of the greatest lover the world has known—the man who made love to two hundred odd women and murdered in cold blood at least fifteen or more.

The lover of Fernande Segret had brought murder to a matter of business—the making of money—the romance of blood!

A few days after their meeting she received her first letter from him. I give it in full with its errors as a specimen of the great lover's amorous epistles. It read:

Jeudi soir.

Je suis, ma jolie petite amie, dans un etat charrin qui me fait venir pres de votre coeur si affecteux pour trouver en lui la consolation et l'oubli de cette peine.

It faut vos le dire d'abord, n'est-ce pas? Rassures-vous, elle ne vient pas de vous, vous en etes incapable, j'en suis seul, certes, l'auteur mais je ne puis encore le preciser.

J'ai vu heir vos yeux, vos beaux yeux si profonds, si troublants, voiles, d'une petite affliction. Vrai doute pour moi, pursque nous etions seuls, que je n'en sois la cause.

Mais de quelle nature est-elle? Aurais-je dit un mot, une phrase qui vous aurait choquee? Est-ce que je cherche sans succes?

J'envisage ainsi et je suis amene a examiner bien des raisons auxquelles, dans mon bonheur de vous avoir pres de moi, je n'avais pas songe dans l'elan de mon coeur si rempli de vous.

Malheuresement, la raison implacable, lorsqu'on la discourt, fait voir mille choses peut-etre erronnese, peut-etre, helas! plus proches de la verite.

De ce nombre, j'ai chassi l'idee ques vous aviez ete chagrine, que je ne vous apporte pas une tendresse toute entiere. Certes, votre belle ame la merite et j'aurais voulu pouvoir le faire. Mais nous sommes pronds le franchise et je vous dirai de moi tout ce que vous desirez savoir ou dures interet a connaitre: mais, je vous en supplie en grace, ne me precipitez pas. Je suis par nature, par ma vie, par ma solitude materielle et morale, un isole, un reformu sur tout. Vous pouvez encore y trouver bien des choses neuves, plus peut-etre que vous pourrez le penser. A vous qui avez tant d'esprit de ne pas trop m'en demander a la fois. Je m'efforceral de compenser ce que la dure experience m'a appris par le soin que mon amitie mettra a eloigner de vous tous les soucis-ple vous pourriez avoir et que vous voudrez bien me confier.

Une autre de ces dures veritez, qu'il m'a fallu reconnaitre et qui peut-etre me plut n'est pas etrangere ou a contribue a votre pein, 'est de constater que je n'ai plus votre age ai charmante et rempli d'esperance.

Les annes ont ete pour moi dures, dans toute la penible acception du mot, et et j'ai conserve un corps souple encore et sain, je vois le dois qu'a une hygiene severe et a l'ecartement de tous excs. Certes, j' tiens encore debout, plus peut-etre que mainte jeunes gens de nos villes, mais les annees ont marque leur empreinte et je regarderais comme une puerilite de chercher a les dissimuler.

Mais pour vous, petits amie, dont la jolieee est dans chaque pas, dans chaque geste, dont les yeux et le sourire si clairs ont droit au bonheur, au reve, puis-je meme avoir la pensee d'etre eleve au rang de camarade accidental sans pouvoir etre taxe de pretention! Que votre savoir-vivre ne proteste pas! Je me connais a ma juste valeur. Si j'ai quelques qualites, j'ai aussi de grands defauts; tout cela mis en balance ne vaut rein por moi.

Seuls, si cela pouvait suffire, une tres grande amitie, un sentiment plus grand, j'en ai bien peur, qu'une affection, n'attire vers vous et grandit chaque jour en decouvrant en vous les tresors si precieux du coeur et de l'esprit, choses rares at malheureusement si peu apprecies de nos jours.

Ou trait-je ainsi, petite amie, bien chere, dans votre joli sillage et ou m'entraines-vous?

Que serai-je pour vous?

Que voudres-vous etre pour moi?

Toutes ces pensees, toutes ces raisons, mille autres, comme je vous le disais, m'ont fait rechercher le motif de vous petite peine. Dites-la-moi, amie aimee, que votre coeur s'ouvre un peu. Vous y trouveres peut-etre un soulagement, et certainement un ami indigent, affectueux et empresse, dont vous n'aures pas a craindre d'user en quoi que ce soit. Nous nous connaissons beaucoup a nous mieux appecier en nous ouvrant loyalement l'un a l'autre. Le voudries-vous? et n'est-ce pas trop vous demander?

Il y a encore d'autres raisons que j'ai examinees, mais celle-la, dont le caractere plus delicat demande a etre commente verbalement, ne vous seront dites par moi que si je n'arrive pas a savoir le jour ou les circonstances m'en fourniront l'occasion.

Parcenez ma presse, son incoherence, mais la seule idee de vous voir chagrinne me supplicie. Vous seule pouvez d'un mot me rendre avec le calme le bonheur si grand de revoir limpides et claires les prunelles si profondement reveusees que leur souvenir me hante et le jour et la nuit.

Adieu, ne me faites pas trop languir; quelle que soit votre reponse, elle sera de vous la bienvenue et recue sans murmure. Vous n'en aures pas moins l'estime, le bons sentiments, et si vous le vous je voules, sur vos cheres menottes, les meilleurs baisers de votre.

THE STORY SO FAR

Landru's early life is described by M. Le Queux in the opening chapter of his story of the world's greatest love criminal. After years of petty swindling he turned his attention to victimizing women, making love to them, getting control of their property, and then killing them. Mme. Cuchet was one of the first. Landru divorced his wife and her son Andre in a villa rented with her money and burned their bodies in a furnace. He then made love to Mme. Labord-Line. Meanwhile the police investigated his activities at the villa and he shrewdly played for time, going to Lyons and notifying them he would have to be gone a week or more. Meanwhile he made love to several other women, including Mme. Langlois, to whom he wrote affectionately and got her to sign over her money. His affair with Elise Laporte followed. Next he killed Mme. Heon. Andree Babelay, a guy shopgirl, fell into his clutches and died. Mme. Buisson and Mme. Jaume followed. The police net was now drawing close around the arch fiend.

"Use Sylpho-Nathol for tired, hot feet"

"This is the first Summer in years that I've been free from foot discomfort. I used to dread hot weather just on that account. My feet would swell; they'd get so hot and ache dreadfully.

"I tried all sorts of things without relief until Betty Mills told me about Sylpho-Nathol.

"'You just use Sylpho-Nathol —and see,' she said, and went on to explain how wonderful she had found it.

"I bought a bottle of Sylpho-Nathol right away. Following the directions, I poured a tablespoonful into a gallon of warm water and put both feet in the clean, pearly-gray solution which it made. My, how good it felt — how it cooled and soothed my feet!

"Since then, I've used Sylpho-Nathol as a regular daily, hot-weather foot bath. It has never failed."

This is just one of the many uses to which Sylpho-Nathol is being put. For making cleansing water that destroys the germs which breed in dust and dirt; as a safe and sure way of banishing unpleasant odors; as a dependable household antiseptic — Sylpho-Nathol meets the most exacting requirements.

Sylpho-Nathol is easy to prepare. A tablespoonful in a gallon of warm water makes a clean-smelling, germ-destroying solution that is ready for immediate use.

Though four and one-half times stronger than carbolic acid, it is as safe to have about as a piece of soap. Your druggist or grocer has Sylpho-Nathol in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c and $1.25. If he hasn't it he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

STEINMETZ PLAN FOR RADIO TRANSMISSION

How one of the huge power stations using radio for transmitting its power around the world will look. Lower inset shows how the radio waves encircle the world like a hollow sphere. When no receiving station is taking power, only a very small amount of energy will be needed to keep this "radio sheet" around the earth, since the returning waves will re-en force those leaving the station. A receiving station anywhere in the world, when properly tuned, will be able to pick this power out of the air. Upper inset shows Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, noted electrical engineer, who is sponsor for the plan.

RADIO WAVES ENCIRCLING THE GLOBE

A RADIO wave sheet that will encircle the globe and transmit electrical energy without wires with almost imperceptible power losses is the astounding prediction of Charles P. Steinmetz, electrical wizard, speaking at the International Radio Congress now being held in Chicago.

Steinmetz, who is regarded as the electrical genius of the age, held an audience of radio engineers enthralled as he pictured the giant power plant of the future transmitting its billions of horsepower by wireless completely around the earth. Instead of the miles and miles of high-tension wires which must be erected at immense expenses before the power generated at a power station can be put to use, there will be instead a few huge power plants, located at the great water-falls, which will distribute their power to any portion of the globe.

By means of radio power transmission, the untold billions of horsepower that could be generated by the immense water-falls in remote parts of the world now lying idle, could be put to use. Almost unlimited amounts of power could be carried anywhere in the world at a small fraction of the present cost. Power for any use would be cheap there in all commodities would fall in price.

At present power transmission lines rarely extend beyond 400 miles from the power station. Power cannot be transmitted beyond this distance economically by high tension lines.

With radio transmission lines, however, a single power station could push heavy trains over the Rocky Mountains, light the city of Boston, and supply power to a ship in the middle of the Pacific Ocean all at the same time. The dwindling supply of the world's black coal would cause no alarm, since the supply of "white coal" is inexhaustible.

Here is how Dr. Steinmetz explains his theory:

"Suppose we had a very large sending station, sending out electro-magnetic waves, not of hundreds, but of hundred thousands or millions of kilowatts, and suppose we could find a wave length where the absorption in the passage of the wave through space would be sufficiently small so as to be negligible compared with the amount of power.

"Assuming first that there are no receiving stations, then the waves leaving from the sending station would encircle the globe and return to the sending station. If the wave length is adjusted so that the return wave coincides with the outgoing wave, the returning wave would return its power, and very little power would be required from the sending station to maintain such a system of high-power standing waves. Only enough would be required, in fact, to supply the losses, or just as little power as is now required in an electric transmission system to maintain the voltage as long as no current is taken off.

"Suppose now we erect a second station tuned for the same wave length as the sending station? It would resonate with the standing electro-magnetic wave issuing from the sending station, and thereby stop its passage by absorbing its energy.

"It would, as we say, punch a hole in the standing wave sheet coming from the sending station. Power would then flow into this hole and the sending station would promptly send out more power to maintain the wave sheet, and this power would be received by the receiving station.

"This would give a real radio power transmission. Any receiving station of suitable design would then be able to pick up power from the universal power supply carried by the standing wave sheet covering the earth. Also several sending stations may send out power. These would have different wave lengths and would then not interfere with each other, or preferably, could be of the same wave-length and turned to synchronize with each other, just as different electric generating stations on the same line are operated in synchronism."

Correct English

1. What is the meaning of the business term tickler?

2. What is amiss with this sentence: "It is the only such society in the country?"

3. Is it correct to say, "I would like to send Jane a steamer gift who is sailing in July?"

4. What is tiffin? How is it pronounced?

ANSWERS

1. The business term, tickler, or jogger, means a tray of card reminders to be consulted every morning as to things to be done that day.

2. Instead of "the only such society," say, "It is the only society of the kind in the country."

3. Place the phrase, "Who is sailing in July" next to "Jane," the noun it modifies.

4. Tiffin, pronounced "tif'in," is an Anglo-Indian term for mid-day luncheon.

Answers to Radio Fans

A. J. J., Camp Devens—The Armstrong super-regenerative set should be built and operated by someone familiar with radio principles, although success has been achieved by others. A plain regenerative set, with a single stage of A. F. amplification should enable you to get the ball scores and other broadcasts from Boston. Diagrams of the two-tube super-regenerative and the other set are being mailed you.

A. G., Brighton—It is impossible to say why your set does not work without further data. The amount of wire mentioned for winding the coils was incorrect, and a correction appeared the following day. The amount you used is about correct. The wiring is quite practical, and has been successfully used. If you will give me some idea of just what you have done, I will endeavor to give you some advice.

A. R. J., Watertown—The key to success with radio-frequency amplification for short waves lies in the coupling used between the tube and detector. A R. F. amplifying transformer seems to be the most efficient and easiest to use.

Will Aid Weather Bureau

The Navy Department and the Federal Weather Bureau are cooperating in an effort to learn whether there is any relation between the centres of electrical disturbance noted by static interference in radio reception and the centres of storms. All radio compass stations, especially those along the coast, are taking bearings on all static disturbances three times daily. It is believed possible that after the results have been checked up the weather bureau will be greatly aided in making its forecasts by reports of static disturbances.

Radio in New York

A new broadcasting station of the very latest and most up-to-date equipment will be opened soon in the heart of New York. This station will be operated jointly by the Radio Corporation of America, the Westinghouse Company, and the General Electric Company, and will take the place of WJZ in Newark, which will be discontinued. This station will be even greater than WJZ, it is reported, and so should be easily heard in Boston. It is being erected on Forty-second street in the heart of the theatrical, concert, and operatic circles of the city.

Regained 18 pounds lost Weight Plus Health and Strength taking Wincarnis

"As one deeply indebted for the very great benefit derived from it, I am writing to tell you what Wincarnis did to my own case.

I was very sick; lost almost 18 pounds in weight; was entirely out of health and nervous, and could not possibly do a single night's sound and restful sleep. I had constant medical attention and the best of wholesome foods, but my condition continued to grow more alarming until I began taking Wincarnis, which helped me from the first few doses.

I have perfectly regained my former weight and strength, sleep soundly every night, eat most heartily and have an abundance of energy. My husband and my mother were so amazed at the effect of Wincarnis in my case that they both began taking it as a tonic. Today, they are just as loud in praise of the preparation as I am. We all think Wincarnis is a truly marvellous blend, and do wish it were known to every weak, nervous or run down person."

Mermaids from all parts of metropolitan Boston are entering for the Boston American's one-mile swimming race in Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 26.

This girls' race for the championship of New England is to be the feature of the annual water carnival conducted by The American. The outing is planned for the purpose of giving the people of Greater Boston a pleasant time and to promote one of the best outdoor sports.

MISS HOLLAND IN RACE.

Many of the best swimmers who are members of the organization will compete in the American's swim. These include Olive Holland of Wollaston, who won the Boston American's swim for the past two years and who won the New England mile championship under the auspices of the City of Boston, July 4, in the fast time of 32 minutes, 27 seconds. Other members of the Boston Red Cross Swimming Corps, who will compete in the American swim, are Wilma Nelson of Cambridge, who won second in the City of Boston mile race, July 4, Mildred Adair of No. 70 Hilborn street, orlindale, who captured fourth prize in the same event, her sister Bertha, Mary and Katherine McArdle of No. 31 Corona street, Dorchester; Iona Hale of No. 1690 Washington street, Roxbury, Mabel Mangller, No. 626 Tremont street, South End, and Stella Hoot of Dorchester. These girls are among the cleverest swimmers in Greater Boston.

Among the latest entries received is that of seventeen-year-old Miss Eleanor J. Daly of No. 24 Richmond avenue, Worcester, who gave an excellent account of herself last year and hopes to do better this year. In that year's race she finished seventh. She is considered one of the speediest swimmers in the Heart of the Commonwealth.

Other girls who have recently entered are:

Miss Rena MacDonald, 18, Kensington road, Readville.

Jane L. Jones, 23, Sharon.

Helen Kelly, 15, No. 567 East Seventh street, South Boston.

Betty Antie, 13, No. 4 Densmore street, Cambridge.

Evangeline Antie, 14 No. 4 Densmore street, Cambridge.

Theodora Antie, 15, No. 4 Densmore street, Cambridge.

Isabel Antie, 16, No. 4 Densmore street, Cambridge.

Edna Antie, 17, No. 4, Densmore street, Cambridge.

GETTING PRIZES.

The Swimming Editor is shopping now for the five prizes to be awarded the girls who finish first. He has seen many fine articles, but isn't sure yet what he will buy. Girls desiring to make suggestions are invited to write. What would YOU prefer to have if you win first prize?

A corking bronze mermaid medal will be given to every girl who completes the entire distance. It will make a fine watch fob. Girls winning them will be proud to display them to their friends.

The rest is up to you, girls. If you want one of those five prizes and be crowned the champion girl swimmer of New England, fill out the coupon and mail it to the Boston American. Then practice daily, for the competition is going to be keen and the girl who wins will have to "go some."

LAUNCH PROSPECTIVE RACE SCHOONER

Lunenburg, N. S., Aug. 11.—A prospective entry for this Fall's Nova Scotia fishing schooner championship races, the Marjorie K. Smith, was launched from the yards of Smith & Rhuland here today. Mr. Hearst Answers Justice Ford's Letter

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.,
August 9, 1922.

The Hon. John Ford,
Justice of the Supreme Court,
New York City, New York.

My Dear Sir:

I appreciate the patriotic spirit of your letter and I highly value your views. I must, however, inflexibly maintain my opinion that Mayor Hylan is pre-eminently the man to nominate for Governor in this emergency. You were good enough to say that I have advocated the issues which are vital today for a great many years and in many places, from San Francisco to New York. This is largely true, but Mayor Hylan has put many of these policies into actual operation, and in my opinion it is the man who accomplishes the RESULTS who is particularly deserving of recognition.

Moreover, have you ever thought that Mayor Hylan is especially fitted to lead in this campaign, as he is both an up-State man and a New York City man? He was born in Greene County. He went out as a country boy to win his way in the world. He won it through personal merit and through unfailing devotion to the cause of the people. He became a jurist of distinction and then the greatest Mayor New York City has ever had. There is no other man mentioned as a candidate who holds the unique position of being able to unite so thoroughly in his own personality the democracy of the State and of the city.

I think New York City should be unselfish enough to spare Mayor Hylan so that he can put into operation throughout all of the State the popular policies which have been so beneficial to the citizens of New York City.

As regards myself, I will not urge my disinclination to go back into public life because, as you suggest, a man has no right to consider his personal preferences in the face of possible service he may be able to render the citizenship, but I will urge the fact that I have been in journalism more than in politics, and I think I can be of greater service in journalism than I could be in politics.

This fight for equal rights, equal opportunities and equal justice, this crusade for popular liberties against special privileges, is not limited to the office of Governor. It should embrace every governmental department of the State and city. It should centre as much upon the Legislature as upon the executive, and it should certainly embrace the judiciary, which, as you very well know, Justice Ford, and have very courageously said, is in a large part the very stronghold of entrenched privilege.

Nor is the fight for just and honest government confined to New York State alone. This question of the control of public utilities by the government or the control of the government by the public utilities extends from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

In San Francisco the city has succeeded in establishing a municipally-owned street car system, and I am very proud to say that my San Francisco newspapers were very largely instrumental in accomplishing this. This publicly-owned and operated street car system is a notable success and an example of satisfactory service to the public, liberal treatment of employes, and large profits to the city with a five-cent fare.

In Chicago, Mayor Thompson, an inspiring leader of progressive Republican views, is making a splendid fight for the five-cent fare and for municipal ownership of the street car lines, and for municipal buses. He is meeting with all the obstacles that confront Mayor Hylan in New York—all the obstacles that can be put in his way by a corporation-owned Legislature, a corporation-controlled judiciary and a subservient corporation press. My papers are supporting him and are promoting the public welfare in supporting him.

In Boston the street car lines are coming into city ownership with the aid and advocacy of my newspapers, and everywhere the fight for popular rights and social and economic justice is being pushed with the best co-operation that I am able to give.

I am engaged heart and soul in the fight and am willing to enlist wherever I can be of the most genuine service. I am also a citizen of New York and would naturally like to see the most accomplished in the State of my citizenship. But I very sincerely believe that the most can be accomplished by having a man of Mayor Hylan's political experience and wisdom and courage and honesty in the executive chair, with the earnest and unremitting support that I will be able to give him as a journalist.

I thank you very heartily for your kind letter with its generous references.

Very faithfully yours,
(Signed) WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Probe Whipple Charges

Source and Object of These Baseless Proceedings Should Be Disclosed to the Public

On Wednesday the Legal Aid Society retracted its charges in the Greene case against Messrs. Whipple, Currier, Parker, Powers, Sherburne and Sullivan upon the ground that there was no evidence to support the charges that they were guilty of a conspiracy to rob widows and orphans. On Thursday Attorney-General Allen, after investigating the charges made against these gentlemen, as part of his preparation to present criminal charges against the H. V. Greene Company itself, issues a statement completely exonerating these gentlemen. Not only does he exonerate them, but he says that their participation in the affairs of Greene resulted in saving to the people who put money in the Greene companies much of their assets, and that they did it as a work of philanthropy and without profit.

So much for the novel use of the processes of the law to start a political canard against a candidate for the great office of the United States Senate. We look to see Mr. Whipple set on foot an investigation of the source and object of these baseless and mendacious charges, now penitently retracted by the responsible officers of the society which made them and turned into praise by the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth, who is investigating the Greene case.

The Backyard Enemy

SEEN AND HEARD

NANTASKET must look to its laurels. A bathless bathing beauty with Scotch plaid kilties and golf hose to match is attracting much attention at Hampton Beach.

During last Sunday's heavy and sudden shower one of the Hampton Beach sand sirens sheltered her nerve (and dry) bathing suit with an umbrella while she fled to the bath house.

The chief of the Salisbury police is a veritable young Solomon. Stung by public criticism of alleged vice conditions on the sands, he personally is active in investigating each complaint. And his traffic squad, as soon Boston motorists are learning to their cost, is perhaps the most efficient on the North Shore.

The fried clam has come into its own again on the road to Newburyport, much traveled by Boston motorists. Signs advertising the fried clam for sale are unnecessarily displayed. "Your nose knows."

DR. ARTHUR W. GREENWOOD of the Massachusetts General Hospital beat it, twisted it, inhaled it, doubled, in fact played with it all through a reading before the Worcester Medical Society, while able physicians gasped. Nobody could say it but Dr. Greenwood. The word is "epidermophytosis." Name of a ring worm thriving in our community.

"HOT HOT DOGS" reads a sign along the North Shore boulevard. Now for cold, cold drinks, popped pop corn, etc.

If you ever want to know how the weather is in Muskalonge, Col., Bumcap, Mex., or Highball, Can., or in fact any burg in any part of the country or the dominion at any given hour slip into the Fruit and Produce Exchange. They have maps there that tell it all every day in the week.

Even the rats are educated at Wellesley. CARETAKER DWIGHT L. JACOBS set traps for them in the college buildings and what do you suppose the rats did? Just moved 'em one side and pinched Dwight's potatoes.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EARTH'S POSITION

By Garrett P. Serviss

A LADY in California says that she asked the following question of an astronomer, and she is sure that he laughed at her, and she doesn't think there was anything to laugh at, either—in which opinion I agree with her. The question was:

"Why is it that we never see on any map the planet earth sailing around in the constellations like any other planet, especially when astronomers know where the earth is in her orbit at any time?"

The only answer given was: "How can you see the earth in the sky and be on the earth at the same time?"

Evidently the minds of the questioner and the answerer did not meet. The astronomer failed to notice that the lady asked about a "map" showing the location of the earth among the constellations at any given time. She did not suppose that there could be an image of the earth seen moving around the sky, as if the dome of the heavens were a vast, all-encircling mirror.

Taken in the sense in which she intended it, her question is a very interesting one. In reply it may be said that the planet earth sometimes is represented in charts, or pictures of the heavens, occupying the place among the stars where it would be actually seen if looked at from the centre of the solar system, the sun. In pictures of the zodiac it is common to show the sun in the centre of the zodiacal circle and the earth among the signs, or constellations, in a position diametrically opposite to that which the sun occupies at the same time, as viewed from the earth.

Modern books on astronomy are all too lacking on the side of the imagination, especially with regard to illustrations. Photographs are good, imposing and informative, but the representations of great unphotographable conceptions that were successfully produced a generation ago have disappeared.

I am sure that it will interest many besides the lady in California to know where the earth is in successive months as viewed from the centre of the solar system. This is known as the heliocentric position, or longitude of the earth, and when applied to the other planets also, it gives the only true representation of the relative positions of the members of the solar system. Mr. arritt in his Monthly Sky Map gives a progressive chart of this kind.

The thing to remember is that the position of the sun in the sky is diametrically opposite to that of the earth. Thus, early in July, when the sun is in the constellation Gemini, as seen from the earth, the earth as seen from the sun, is in Sagittarius, the constellation of the zodiacal circle that is opposite to Gemini.

So, in August, when the sun is in the constellation Cancer, the earth is in Capricornus. In September the sun passes into Leo and the earth into Aquarius. In October the sun enters Virgo and the earth Pisces. In November we find the sun in Libra and the earth in Aries.

In December they are respectively in Scorpio and Taurus; in January in Sagittarius and Gemini; in February in Capricornus and Cancer; in March in Aquarius and Leo; in April in Pisces and Virgo; in May in Aries and Libra, and in June in Taurus and Scorpio.

The constellations of the zodiac, as limited by charts, are not of equal length, so that the correspondence of opposite location is not so perfect as it would be if the signs of the zodiac were used, for the signs are all equal in length. But unfortunately they are not visually recognizable, like the constellations, by well-marked groups of stars.

You can go by this rule: The constellation of the zodiac that the earth is "in" at any time is always visible at that time by night, and will be found on the meridian at midnight.

The Voice of New England

Jellyfish Americans

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial, "Protect Our Traditions," was most opportune. However, the patriotic work of societies or individuals endeavoring to combat insidious British propagandists would be almost futile were it not for the hearty co-operation of the Hearst papers. It will be difficult to conserve our traditions so long as jellyfish Americans allow themselves to be the willing tools of designing Britishers who come here to speak at conventions and other gatherings, as witness:

A convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World(!) was recently held in Milwaukee. Only two flags were displayed—the Star Spangled Banner and the Union Jack. Sir Charles Hingham of London, after a characteristic Englishman's speech, asked the delegates (about 3500) to rise and sing "God Save the King." He read the words to the audience, then led the choir, the delegates rising and singing as requested. Two men out of that concourse—Mayor Hoan and the Rev. Charles Aubrey Eaton, former pastor of the Rockefeller Church in Cleveland—had the sense to resent the insult by remaining seated.

When the Rev. Mr. Eaton rose to speak after Sir Charles, he said in part: "There are no kings in America. There is no class distinction and no system of caste in this country. I speak of truth and against kings and classes."

Thus spoke and acted a true American to the utter confusion of the jellyfish.

Should Join Salvation Army

Editor Boston American:

Although not a believer in Christ I certainly side with "A Brockton Girl" in Saturday's Boston American.

This Mary Agnes Vitchestain should join the Salvation Army Corps and have her "soul" saved before it is too late.

She is too young and uses too much slang to have other children follow her and to dictate to older people. I doubt whether Mary Agnes has any "Jewish blood" in her veins. C. C.

Assassination

Editor Boston American:

If your editorial, "Assassination Does Not Pay," is true, why not include capital punishment—killing in cold-blooded manner by the State? Assassination, such as that of Alexander Romanoff II. and some of his relatives and officials, does pay. Djemal Pasha and others like them should be regarded by people at large as house pests are regarded by the good housewife.

You surely would not condemn one for ridding his home of destructive pests? If, instead of killing them, we could only make such an example of them that would prevent emulation of their conduct by others, it would be very good indeed, but as it is I am in favor of killing them wherever found. B. SAVER.

Modern Undress

Editor Boston American:

While I am willing to acknowledge that all women have the right to dress as it suits them, I also contend that all women have the right to comment on the style of dress that is worn today. It has and always will be a mystery to many of us how any woman who claims to be a gentlewoman can adopt the present-day style of dress, especially as the men upon the whole do not admire or approve of it, although they seldom admit it. The bobbed hair looks bold; the long gypsy-style earring plebian; the very low neck dress and short skirt immodest, to say the least. Any female who wears the knickerbockers should be arrested on sight. While the women are taking delight in going half clad in all public places so that they appear both ridiculous and bold looking.

SOUTHERNER.

Personal Rights

Editor Boston American:

One's personal opinion has nothing to do with Arbuckle's right to be connected with the moving picture industry, or Will Hays' right to issue an order forbidding it. If the laws of the country are such that Hays actually has the right to ban Arbuckle, it should be so explained to the public. If Hays has not that right, he and all people connected with the perpetration of such an outrage should be publically condemned by the press of the country which has notified the public that Arbuckle has been so barred by the order of Will Hays.

Personal opinion about our fellow-men and their rights as fellow-citizens are separate and distinct matters, and no honest person would intentionally confuse the two and take advantage of a man's misfortune to override his rights and force a personal opinion into the issue.

HATS OFF AND CRY "LONG LIVE QUEEN ASPARAGUS!"

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

MOST of us dearly love a title even more than we are charged with doing.

There is, for instance, that aristocratic cognomen long ago brought into this country with the roast beef of old England.

An English King, who was also an epicure, was served a roast of beef which so tickled his royal palate that he knighted it Sir Loin.

Are you too democratic to pay occasional homage to this ancient and honorable title? Probably not, unless your reverence vegetarianism matches your deep-dyed democracy.

Even then your sense of humor will come to the rescue and let you join in the acclaim of the inanimate thing which, by its intrinsic excellence, won a place with the rest of the perishable aristocracy.

While we are at the table, discussing the ever pleasant subject of food, suppose now that you consider, by request, another item which should appeal to even the selective taste of the vegetarian.

Have some asparagus!

By common consent, instead of by royal decree, here is a dietary article to which also has been awarded the recognition of intrinsic excellence.

In France, where epicurean delights are presumed to be part of the practical piety of living, they have given national cognizance to this delicious vegetable.

The centenary of Moliere and other folks who helped to make France famous through food for thought provided to that spiritual people, has been followed by that of the man who provided one of the most delectable items to the menu of France and all the other nations.

Alas! the name of the discoverer of the desirability of asparagus has not been preserved to posterity. But at least we have the succulent stalks themselves.

Nevertheless, like an Unknown Soldier of the Stomach, the popularizer of asparagus has been duly and democratically honored by a nation astute enough to know that, if thoughts are things, things also are significant as the visible symbols of thoughts.

Hats off—and mouths open! And a shout, before you eat! "Long live Queen Asparagus!"

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

PEOPLE born this day of the year are noted for their fearless idealism. They are born under constellations which mark them for leadership and controversy, and they develop either into inspired masters of men or famous demagogues, depending upon the mastery they are able to acquire over their own energetic spirits. But one thing is certain of them, their lives, be they famous or infamous, are never dull nor uninteresting.

Today is one of doubtful fortune. You should avoid all contact with the opposite sex.

Financially you will prosper this year proportionally to possible sufferings.

A child born today will be impetuous and stubborn and generally reluctant to admit its own mistakes.

Benjamin R. Tillman—Governor and Senator.

Once-Overs

HAVE YOU THE NEGATIVE ATTITUDE?

Get over that idea that it is not your business and so you won't help any good cause which comes along, unless it is to your interests directly.

A negative thought does more damage to you than to the other fellow.

Not that you want to do anyone an injury, but the fact that you are not in a mood to be helpful is a condition of mind which reacts to your detriment.

There is nothing started for good, which is not the better for co-operative spirit among those who are in the "know about it" zone.

Speak a good word for what the other fellow is doing; it will not hurt you.

You do not have to compromise yourself and your right principles by so doing, if you do see good in what is going on under another's direction.

It does not hurt you to be alive with interest for the good things in your town, or your church or your club.

Suppose another is taking the responsibility, is it not all the more up to you to encourage and inspire and help along?

—Medbury Says—

No Girl Wants a Husband Who Has Been Pawed Over by Other Dames

A lot of people think it's a coincidence when a rich girl marries a wealthy fellow, but it's not. They don't realize the trouble a society woman goes to in marketing her daughter.

She goes shopping for a husband in the same way that we would go to market for fruit and vegetables.

That's why so many dames go to the Summer resorts early.

They want to get there before all the good stuff is gone.

No girl wants a husband who's been pawed over by every dame in the neighborhood.

Of course, Atlantic City and Palm Beach are nothing but market places, but they're far from being free markets.

One fashionable resort put an advertisement in the paper which read: "Shop early and avoid the rush.'

A society woman from New York found two husbands for her daughter. During the time she was having married her right away, but the other one would have had to talk it over with his wife first.

The average woman likes to get a divorced man for her daughter because he's trained when it comes to giving alimony.

No girl wants a husband who isn't court broken.

The mother picks out her daughter's husband for nothing.

All that she gets for her trouble is 10 per cent. of the alimony.

That's why so few couples marry for love. It isn't fair to the girl's mother.

If a couple loved each other they might stay married all their life and cheat their parents out of the consolation that would be coming to them.

It won't be long before the Bible will be done away with and the marriage ceremony will be read from a checkbook.

A girl wants a husband that she can bank on.

One dame was terribly disappointed in her marriage. She found out she loved her husband.

When she discovered that he didn't have any money, she had to leave him because she was afraid people would talk.

She got her divorce on the grounds that her husband disgraced her by going to work for a living.

Times have certainly changed. It used to be that a girl hesitated about getting married because she was afraid she couldn't love her fiance.

Now she doesn't want to get married because she's afraid she might.
